GIRLS FACING QUIZ IN HOLDUP

Today

Republicans Confess.
Ocean Air Mail.
The Morning After.
Old Man Calculus.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

AFTER A PARTY young people sit up to talk it over.

After a political convention, all politicians and some of the people talk it over.

Much discussion of the prohibition plank, and there is complaining. The plank, to the average man, is about as plain as Spencer's definition of evolution, which, written from memory, on this Pennsylvania train, runs as follows:

> Evolution is an integration of matter and a concomitant dissipation of motion, during which the matter passes from an indefinite, incoherent homogeneity to a definite coherent heterogeneity, and during which the retained motion undergoes a parallel transformation.

ASKED BY the writer to put his definition in words readily understood, Herbert Spencer replied that anyone to whom his definition was not perfectly clear could not possibly understand evolution, therefore it was useless to rewrite it.

THE MAIN thing about the Republicans' prohibition plank is their confession, however involved, that prohibition is a failure. That means a change, and perhaps a gradual elimination of the "things gained by prohibition," including bootlegging, racketeering, gang crime organized as a great industry, drinking of whisky and gin by high school children, and the establishment of five secret speakeasies for every open saloon of anti-prohibition days.

Control of liquor traffic by the government will replace control by criminals, and gigantic liquor revenues will help pay taxes instead of financing wholesale crime.

CONGRATULATIONS to the House, to Mr. Garner, Mr. Rayburn for passing the Crosser bill authorizing contracts for sending mail to Europe by dirigible, and congratulations to Mr. Crosser, of Ohio, author of the bill.

Private enterprise is prepared to construct dirigibles to make the European round trip, with mail and passengers in one week, stops in Europe and America included. The ocean trip will be made in two days at first, more rapidly later.

With all our depression, this nation should lead in such enterprises, and there is no doubt that dirigible fast mail, at three or four times the usual charge, will tax the dirigible's capacity and yield great profit to the government.

AN ITALIAN, using a plane kept strictly secret as to its construction, has flown four hundred and thirty miles in an hour, beating the world record held by Britain.

Mussolini knows that future wars will be won in the air and under water, and his government finances intelligent flying ideas. This country should follow suit.

A PLANE going 430 miles an hour, fueled for long flight, could, and some day will, cross the ocean in seven hours. That would not give us much time to get ready.

Speed and thoroughness are parts of Mussolini's methods. Utterly fearless, he is anxious to complete his work and dislikes those who persist in trying to murder him.

The recent plot to bomb Mussolini was immediately followed by the conviction of Domenico Bovone, and twelve hours later came the death sentence for Angelo Sbardellotto. He showed complete indifference, refusing to make any appeal to the king.

Yesterday both these men were shot in the back. That was supposed to make death more horrible, by humiliation, because cowards, shot while running away, are shot in the back. The great French fighter Crillon, you will remember, laid out after death, all undressed, was covered with scars from forehead to instep. When they turned him over, there was not a scratch on his back.

ONE SWIFT look at the bonus bill, passed by the House, caused the Senate committee to decide against it, fourteen to two, and the whole Senate rejected it, 62 to 18. The bill, as stated here, had no chance of becoming law.

We were rich enough to send three million men to Europe and provide billions for their expenses, plus ten billions cash to help Europeans butchering each other.

When it comes to finding two and a half billions for men deprived of their chance at big wages in the war, and now without jobs, that is a different story. The war was a first class debauch, no expense was too great, we added more than twenty thousand millions to the national debt.

This is the morning after.

EVERYTHING IN a material way is made easy for us. President Hoover will not be compelled to travel about, as candidates once had to do. He may stay at his Rapidan camp and talk to all America by radio. And such talking is more effective than any barnstorming campaign. Your audience sits quietly at home, listening.

There is no heckling. Sound arguments, facts convincingly presented win, without torchlight parades or braying bands. But you must have the FACTS to present.

RUSSIAN SCIENTISTS are exploring a sunken city in the Black Sea, supposed to be "Old Cheronesus." Divers bring up from beneath the water strange descriptions of a fortified city, built by the Greeks and en-

SLAIN MAN'S LOVE NOTE READ IN COURT

London Society Heiress Weeps as Coroner Shows Bullet Holes in Coat

By H. K. REYNOLDS
International News Service.

LONDON, June 18.—After a dramatic hearing, Mrs. Elvira Dolores Barney, daughter of a multi-millionaire director of the London Stock Exchange and wife of an American singer, today was committed to trial for the murder of Michael Scott Stephen, wealthy Irish sportsman who was shot and killed in her flat after a nightlong cocktail party.

She was also ordered tried on a second charge of shooting at Stephen "with intent to do grievous bodily harm" two weeks before the night of his death.

FINGERPRINT EXPERT

The first witness was a fingerprint expert, who testified that the revolver had been handled by so many persons it would be impossible to identify any of the prints.

An insight into the personal relations between Mrs. Barney and the dead man, including a confession that Stephen had done some "dreadful and horrible things," was given in a letter read to the court by Sir Patrick Hastings, Mrs. Barney's counsel.

The letter, apparently written by Stephen to Mrs. Barney, was found in her flat. The address had been stricken out and the words "Love Hut" inserted instead. The letter read:

"Dear Little Fattable: This little note is to be waiting for your arrival in the place where I've been the happiest in all my life.

"Be brave, darling, and take care of yourself because you are mine and mine alone. Don't forget your little Mickech. I'll be thinking of you always. Forgive me for the dreadful, horrible things I have done, baby. I promise to be better and kinder and won't frighten you any more. I love you only in all the world, little one.

"I really love you, darling. The biggest thrills I have ever had you have given me. All I hope is that you'll go on. I adore it when you're sweet and kind as I haven't had a lot of affection in my life.

"So it means a great deal and I feel like suicide when you are angry. Sometimes when you're feeling furious, do try and think of the hell I had to endure with J. B.

'SUFFERED MUCH'

"Don't be jealous, because I suffered so much over that with him. It ruined my marriage and leads to all kinds of miseries. So be broadminded. I won't let you down because you're so lovable."

Mrs. Barney wept bitterly when Sir Bernard Spilsbury, Westminster Coroner, took the stand and showed the bullet holes and smoke stains in Stephen's blue coat and yellow pull-over. He said the bullet had been fired from a distance of from three to six inches from the body.

Showered With Acid, Boy's Sight Periled

Burned about the face by sulphuric acid spilt by a playmate, Eugene Marshall, 4, of 319 North Neville street, will probably lose the sight of his right eye, physicians at Homeopathic Hospital said today.

Maid Beaten

MRS. WALTER T. GRANGE

Mrs. Grange, society woman whose home in fashionable Church lane, Edgeworth, was entered by a blackjack-armed prowler who slugged Marie Smith, 24, an employe, fled without Grange jewels when she refused money and screamed.

ROBBER BEATS GIRL IN HOME

Slugged by a robber armed with a blackjack, Marie Smith, 24, employed in the home of Walter T. Grange, head of the W. T. Grange Construction Company, in Church lane, Edgeworth, fashionable Pittsburgh suburb, was recovering today, police reported. Screams of the girl routed the intruder, who had obtained no loot.

Miss Smith told police that while she was alone the man surprised her on the second floor, struck her and commanded her:

"Tell me where the money is."

She told him there was no money and began shouting for help. The would-be robber, without attempting to obtain jewelry nearby, ran out of the house and escaped in an automobile. The young woman was treated by a physician for bruises and shock.

Sharp Earthquake Rocks Mexico City

MEXICO CITY, June 18.—(AP.)—At 4:15 a. m. today a sharp earthquake struck Mexico City, terrifying the people. Most of them fled to the parks and fields of the suburbs, where they spent the rest of the morning.

There were vivid sheets of lightning before and after the quake. It was not thought the damage here was very great, but it seemed probable that in nearby states the blow may have been heavier.

VETS PUSH FIGHT FOR BONUS

Ex-Service Men Accept Senate Defeat Calmly; Measure Loses by 62 to 18

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Thousands of World War veterans who sang when the Senate crushed their hopes for cash payment of the soldiers' bonus today set about the tedious business of reorganizing their forces for a new campaign in the wake of stinging defeat.

The Senate rejected their bill by the decisive count of 62 to 18 in a roll call that smashed all party lines. The veterans called it a "temporary setback."

They were up against a tough proposition with the bonus bill dead in Congress. But they had to their credit a demonstration which won the respect of every man on Capitol Hill, and which was, as a spectacle, nothing less than magnificent.

WEARYING DAY

They spent a wearying day under streaming sun massed fanwise before and on the broad steps of the Capitol.

Then, under the glare of booming photographic flares in the night they sang "America," when their commander, Walter W. Waters, announced the Senate had licked their bill, but that for them "the fight has just begun."

There were 12,000 men in that throng spreading from the doors of the government into the night as the Senate roll call started. Every available police officer in the district was stationed about the capitol, in anticipation of trouble.

All the coppers had to do was direct traffic. They watched in wonder, along with some Senators, as a slender leader arose to tell his men they had lost a battle. Wonder grew as 12,000 veterans broke into cheers, and sang their way into the night.

There was no disorder and at midnight the bonus marchers were back in their camps.

Today the veterans set to work to carry out the orders their leader shouted when the Senate voted down the bonus bill. Waters brought the bad news bluntly before them and called for order. He said:

"Men, I have come to tell you of a temporary setback. Remember, it is only a temporary setback. The Senate has defeated the bonus bill. Our fight has just begun.

"We must show the American people we are soldiers. There must be no disorder. No noisy demonstrations.

"I want you to write your buddies to come on to Washington. We want them all. We intend to stay here—to stay here until 1945 to wait for the bonus if necessary. But we will win our fight."

Senators Reed and Davis, of Pennsylvania, voted against the bill.

PUSH CONGRESS RELIEF FIGHT

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP.)—Sweeping toward final solution of its chief remaining problems, Congress undertook again today to act on unemployment relief and curtailment of government expenditures.

The Senate had before it as pending business the Wagner $2,000,000,000 relief bill, presented as substitute for the huge Garner bill approved by the House.

It carried a $500,000,000 public works bond issue proposal, opposed in principle by the administration and therefore certain to bring on trouble and debate.

However, action on appropriations for the government's numerous independent offices appeared likely to displace the relief issue and postpone the bond issue conflict until Monday.

Death Parts Police Car-Crew 'Buddies'

A police companionship which started five years ago when emergency cars first were installed at each station house, and continued when George Stokes, 33, of 354 Forty-fifth street, and Charles Nixon, were assigned together as one of the first radio car crews, was ended by death today.

Stokes, on furlough since June 1, died in his home this morning after a 10-day illness. He leaves his mother, Mrs. Anna Stagner, of 4043 Cabinet street, his wife and a child.

Two Injured in Auto Crash on North Side

Winnie Mill, 28, of 1706 Rhine street, and Thomas Schratz, 20, of 221 Fisk street, were injured early today in a collision of two automobiles at Western and Chateau streets. William L. Steele, 30, of 3332 McNeil place, and John M. Geary, 21, of 221 Fisk street, drivers, were held on reckless driving charges.

Public Works, Jobs for All, Plea of Norris

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—"An employment measure on a country-wide scale, with billions behind it," so that not only the soldiers, but all of the unemployed may have jobs.

Such was the demand of Senator George W. Norris, veteran insurgent of Nebraska, in an eloquent address to the Senate justifying his vote yesterday against the proposal to cash the $2,400,000,000 outstanding adjusted compensation certificates.

The white-haired solon has seldom been more eloquent than he was in making his impassioned plea, which made an obvious impression not only upon his colleagues, but upon the veterans themselves, seated in the galleries.

Senator Norris referred to the fact that he is the only remaining Senator of the six who voted against the declaration of war and pathetically predicted that he would soon join the others. He had

The Problem

AN INCREASE of 1,060 new cases for relief was reported by the Allegheny County Emergency Association for the week of June 4.

The Remedy

A $5,000,000,000 bond issue by the United States to build great public works, employ several million men, start the nation back to prosperity.

WIFE GONE, MAN SUICIDE AT 57

Rushing from her home when she heard a shot, Miss Daisy Morosini, 26, of Larimer avenue Extension, Linhart, found the body of J. J. Edwards, 57, a neighbor who operates a grocery store and gasoline station. A shotgun was found beside the body and there was a wound near the heart.

Neighbors say that Edwards had been married about 33 years and that about six weeks ago his wife left him. Yesterday he told a friend that she was in San Francisco. Edwards was seen in his store and at his gasoline pumps a short time before his death, which police listed as a suicide.

Another alleged suicide was reported from Versailles Township, where Frank Hackett, 55, a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad engineer was found dead in the cellar of his home, 500 High street, with a bullet wound in his head. Members of the family told morgue attaches he had been in ill health for some time.

SOUTH HILLS VICTIMS TO VIEW PAIR

Two From Ohio Arrested With Bridgeville Men in Auto; Weapons Seized

Mt. Lebanon police today were to make a tour of the South Hills with two girls and two men arrested early this morning at a Washington road barbecue and attempt to connect them with a series of robberies in that section.

A loaded sawed-off shotgun, two revolvers and a hunting knife were found in the automobile of the quartet and the men carried a flashlight and blue bandana handkerchiefs, the arresting officers reported.

The prisoners, held as suspicious persons, gave their names as Opal Dowler, 19, 216 Mulberry street, Washington Court House, O., and her cousin, Hazel Dowler, 17, of 753 St. Johns street, in the same town, and James A. McFeely, 25, and Charles McCoy, 20, both of Bridgeville.

Lieut. Ted Carrington and Patrolman Scott G. Hamilton reported to Chief William Kane that the two men were found in the rear of the barbecue at closing time and, when questioned, said they wanted to buy cigarets. The girls were found in the machine which contained the weapons, police said.

WM. FOX SHUNS QUIZ AGAIN

WASHINGTON, June 18—(AP.)—William Fox, former head of the Fox Film and Theater companies, today failed for the third time to appear for questioning at the Senate stock market examination, claiming it would be dangerous to his health.

An attorney for the theater man informed the Senate Banking Committee, which is conducting the inquiry, that two doctors had said it would endanger Fox's life to testify at this time.

Broudy Being Tried For Hitting Player

Testimony was being completed today in Criminal Court in the assault and battery case of Julius Gardner, French horn player, against David Broudy, orchestra leader at the Stanley Theater, who, Gardner alleges, struck him in the eye, permanently damaging his sight, October 16, 1929.

Gardner previously obtained a verdict for $3,500 damages against Broudy in a civil suit over the same alleged blow. It is said the judgment has not been paid.

19 Swimming Pools Open, 4 on Sundays

Nineteen swimming pools under supervision of the City Bureau of Recreation were open to the public today. Four, in the North Side district, will be operated by the bureau Sundays. The pools will remain open for the summer.

Witchcraft Test Fails To Turn Goat Into Man

WERNIGERODE, Saxony, Germany, June 18.—(AP.)—A scrawny billygoat, smeared with blood and honey and the scrapings of church bells, but still a billygoat, bore mute evidence here today that modern psychic research had won round one against the witches on "The Brocken," Germany's magic mountain.

At an eerie ceremony on top of the mountain last night, the billygoat failed to change into a man, although modern British and German psychic researchers carried out the old witches' formula supposed to achieve that result.

With the experimenters was Miss Gloria Gordon, of England—for the ancient witch formula called for a maiden "pure of heart" and Miss Gordon said she guessed she was "as well qualified as any girl nowadays" for the part.

Atop the mountain they anointed the goat with the blood, the honey and the scrapings of church bells and covered him with a sheet which Miss Gordon jerked off.

But no handsome young man stepped out. Instead, there stood the same besmeared billygoat, shivering in the cold.

The witches had failed, and everybody applauded, for that is what they set out to prove.

Rebuttals in Sunday Law Debate on Air Tonight

Rebuttal arguments in the radio debate between Attorney Charles F. C. Arensberg and the Rev. Dr. James McQuilkin, of Carnegie, on "Should the Pennsylvania Sunday Laws Be Repealed," will begin over Station WCAE at 8 o'clock tonight.

Each of the orators will be allowed seven minutes to present his summation of the argument presented last night by his opponent. Dr. McQuilkin will be the first speaker tonight.

Last night over the same station both presented their main arguments.

Attorney Arensberg, arguing for the repeal, said:

"In 1794 when the Blue laws were passed the world as we live in now did not exist. There were no railroads, or canals, no factories or industries, no automobile or airplanes, no telegraph or telephones, no radios and moving pictures.

"Even our games had not been invented. None of the things the Blue laws are now used to prohibit was in existence or dreamed of.

"Nothing could be more absurd than to think that these Blue laws passed under such conditions can be a sane or intelligent guide in determining the con-

CONVENTION FIGHT SEEN ON DEMOCRATIC ANTI-DRY PLANK

SHOUSE FAVORS MINORITY PLAN OF G. O. P.

South Expected to Battle Repeal Test Plan, but Yield, Seeing Victory in Harmony

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

CHICAGO, June 18.—The Democratic platform will be anti-dry and clearly propose a test of national sentiment on repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

This prediction by Jouett Shouse, generalissimo of the Democratic forces, was echoed today by other early arrivals for the convention, meeting 10 days hence. Shouse was positive the convention would be anti-dry, but expressed the opinion it would not go so far as to put the Democratic party on record as favoring repeal. He said:

"My guess is that the minority plank of the Republicans will be as far as the Democrats will go."

The plank he referred to was proposed by Senator Bingham (Rep.), of Conn., and beaten in the Republican convention by a vote of 472 to 681.

BATTLE INDICATED

There were indications the Democrats would stage just as big a fight over prohibition as did the Republicans. Dry Democrats from the Southern and Midwestern states were reported ready to fight against any plank proposing another vote on the Eighteenth Amendment unless it carried—as did the Republican plan—a substitute proposal for federal control of the liquor traffic. The drys were determined to keep the federal government in the saddle, even if absolute prohibition must give way to regulation.

Another controversy threatened over the preamble to the plank. The drys insisted the plank carry no attack on prohibition. They were ready to battle against the intention of anti-drys to declare prohibition a failure. The drys won that fight in the Republican convention, the Republican preamble referring to prohibition as "the progress which has been thus far made" in controlling the liquor traffic.

SHOUSE EXPECTS STRIFE

A battle on the floor of the Democratic convention appeared inevitable. Shouse shared this view. He said:

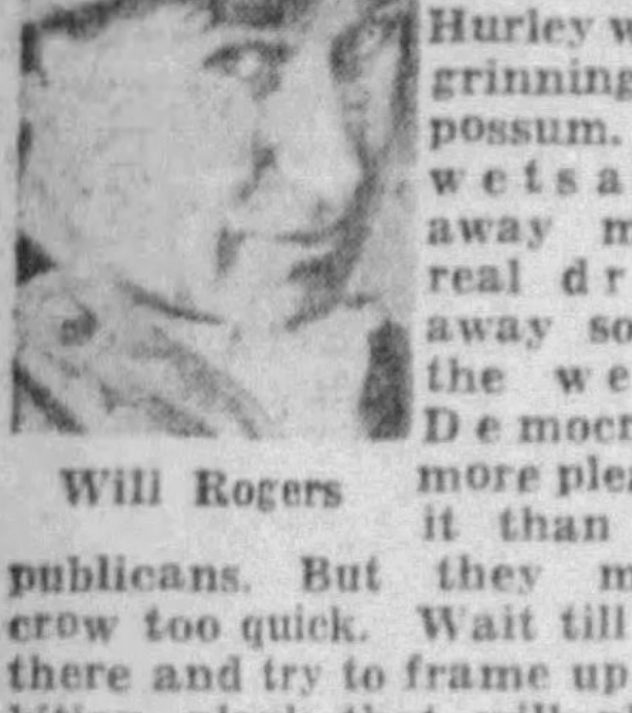
"I hope the party can agree on a prohibition plank without a fight in the convention, but it is very doubtful if that can be brought about."

But the Democrats will have one advantage over the Republicans. Where Republican leaders left here, mumbling against the "straddle" prohibition plank, the Democrats undoubtedly will support their platform, wet or dry, frank or elusive, as they believe they have a chance to win in November. Shouse said:

"The dry South will vote Democratic, regardless of the Democratic platform."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

CLAREMORE, Okla., June 18.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:



Will Rogers

Well, I was the first Democratic white child to escape from the Republicans. Flew in here from Chicago in four hours. Saw all of 'em leaving Chicago. Alice is coming back for the Democrats' meeting. Said this one was misrepresented and wasn't a convention. Pat Hurley went away grinning like a possum. The real wets all went away mad. The real drys went away sorer than the wets. The Democrats seem more pleased with it than the Republicans. But they must not crow too quick. Wait till they get there and try to frame up a prohibition plank that will please all, and they will begin to realize what these birds were up against. So they are liable to come out of there with one that reads more different ways then the Republicans' did.

Yours, WILL.

Gibbons Set for New Fight At Democratic Convention

By FLOYD GIBBONS
(Copyright, 1932, International News Service, Inc.)

CHICAGO, June 18. — Hello, everybody:

Heard the gosh-awfulest noise yesterday morning, right under my hotel window. There I was trying to get a good, long sleep, after hanging around the stage-door at the G. O. P. follies. Poked my head out and, by the shades of Old Hickery, Jouett Shouse was coming down the street.

Jouett is the Al Smith-Raskob contender who will battle Tom Walsh, of Montana, for the heavyweight permanent chairmanship of the Democratic convention. You know, Franklin Roosevelt has his money on Tom.

Jouett and his cohorts took one look at Michigan avenue. By jingo, one or two flags with white elephants were still hitched to the lampposts. Mayor Cermak's boys hadn't had time to take them down. Well, Jouett's boys took one look and started gnawing those posts down. They soon had the old street cleaned out of white elephants and a battery of gals with sewing machines were stitching up new banners.

Talked to the hotel clerk at the Congress and, say, before next week is as old as Tuesday, all the tents will be pitched in that beehive of a hotel. Ritchie, Jack Garner, Harry Byrd and Gov. White of Ohio have all staked out camp sites there. Al Smith has corralled something less than 100 rooms and Frank Roosevelt's brigade under Jim Farley will be clogging up Peacock Alley over the week-end.

Even Alfalfa Bill Murray will stick his pitchfork into Loop territory and hang out his shingle.

SEEK EXTENDED STOCK INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP.)—Having tapped 10 times as much investigable material in its stock exchange inquiry as it can possibly present for public consumption during the short remainder of this session, the Banking Committee has decided to ask the Senate to extend the investigation through the next term of Congress.

The previous plan for a quick and snappy finish was abandoned yesterday when it became clear that several of the most promising leads developed would have to be left up in the air unless the probe went on.

The new plan, unanimously approved, is to have the crew of expert investigators under Counsel William A. Gray amass material during the summer. The committees would not resume hearings until fall but would continue them on towards the March 4 final adjournment date of this Congress.

A resolution asking this authority was to be prepared. Meantime, the committee proceeded today with hearing Gray's outline of short sales and other transactions in Fox Film Corporation, in which the counsel charges William Fox was the moving spirit.

Wreck of G. O. P. Ready to Run Four More Years

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

We're winding up the Republican convention with some of the high-lights.

When Nick Murray Butler was called on for his wet speech he hopped out of the Arizona and Utah delegations which are dry. Nick had smuggled himself in like a Chinaman crossing the border in a herd of sheep.

When Garfield got that Bronx cheerio from the gallery he was entitled to fifteen minutes and thirteen of them were razzberries. When France was given the bum's rush a bouncer booted him in the trousers, saluted and said:

"It is for France."

Dolly Gann and Alice Longorth meeting in the aisle and Dolly sticking out her hand—to make a left turn.

The objection of the gallery to the Republican platform which was thickly painted with three coats of false optimism and simonized with hypocrisy.

The delegate who voted dry and then fell on his face.

He explained that he got seasick watching a professional tatooer etching a boat on a sailor's arm.

And the national committee. The greatest wrecking crew in the history of the world. They can haul a wreck off the main track and make it run for another four years.

BLAST TOLL MAY REACH 27

MONTREAL, June 18.—(INS.)—Seventeen men were still missing today after the explosion in the oil tanker Cymbeline, which killed 10 men and injured more than half a hundred persons.

The Vickers drydock was a mass of ruins today. It was set afire by flames which spread from the vessel following the blasts.

A departmental funeral was arranged today for Fire Chief Raoul Gauthier, who died while helping fight the flames fed by flaming oil poured onto the dock from the burning ship.

Property damage in the disaster was estimated at several million dollars.

HOOVER ARGUES FOR FURLOUGH ADOPTION

President Speaks to Break Congress Deadlock Over Salary Economy Program

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP.)—A mildly phrased but forcefully argued plea from President Hoover for adoption of his furlough plan of reducing federal pay, faced Congress today as it wrestled anew with this obstinate economy program.

The Chief Executive put his case in a public statement, delivered verbally yesterday afternoon at his first newspaper conference since renomination.

MANY BENEFITS SEEN

He argued that the furlough plan—by which the average government worker would receive the equivalent of one month's payless layoff during the year—would record the government's willingness to co-operate in shortening the hours of labor; would keep basic pay rates unchanged; would avoid discharges and lead to a slight increase in employment; and, contrary to general congressional claims, would actually produce a larger saving than any flat pay cut likely to be adopted by Congress. It will be the equivalent, he said, to the five-day week.

Mr. Hoover said:

"I am in hopes that the conferees and Congress will find it possible to accept the so-called furlough plan."

CONFEREES DISAGREE

But, as he spoke, the conferees decided they could not agree, and laid plans to report this disagreement first to the House today and later, if necessary, to the Senate for new instructions.

In the same statement, Mr. Hoover expressed hope that the conferees would grant him much wider powers for reorganizing executive departments and bureaus than the bill, as passed by the Senate, allowed.

He contended that the present bill permitted him to make immediate reductions only in agencies spending $25,000,000 a year, while the broader power sought would permit him to slash into bureaus spending five to six hundred millions annually. Savings now, he said, are far more important than those that may be made next spring.

'Al' and 'Herb' Fail To Impress Dog Sale Bidders

"Al Smith," the laughing, long-haired pup, and his pal, "Herbert Hoover," lop-eared and indifferent to things in general, went on the block yesterday and didn't bring their weight in hamburger.

The pups were the main articles for sale at the Civic Club rummage sale at 532 Penn avenue, but due to the hard feeling, maybe, caused by the big show in Chicago, didn't take so well. "Al," who should have brought a lot of money, considering his pedigree, brought $8, but "Herb" didn't rate so well, and went for $6.50. And to make things worse, when the woman who won him got a good look, she changed her mind and threw him back on the market.

H. M. Muller, past president of the club, today was preparing to offer the President's namesake for sale again.

CABINET BACKS HERRIOT STAND

By WILLIAM PARKER
International News Service.

PARIS, June 18.—Premier Edouard Herriot's firm stand at the Lausanne conference against immediate cancellation of all German reparation payments was unanimously approved at a meeting of the French cabinet today.

President Albert Lebrun presided over the meeting, which adjourned shortly after noon.

The cabinet also approved Herriot's declaration of French policy at the Geneva disarmament conference when he insisted that security must precede any agreement for reduction in the French military establishment.

Premier Herriot, who arrived from Lausanne to attend the cabinet session, will return Sunday night for a resumption of the conversations with representatives of Great Britain, Germany, Italy, Belgium and Japan.

Investigate Drug Death of Woman

Investigation into the death of Mrs. Peggy Vanfield, 32, of 579 Mifflin road, was continued by the Coroner's office today. Mrs. Vanfield swallowed a drug in a Fourth avenue office building after a fruitless search for work, Thursday, according to the Coroner's report.

Mrs. Vanfield was taken to a downtown hotel and from there to her home, where she died. A sister of Mrs. Vanfield told deputy coroners the victim had been nervous and taking a remedy prescribed by a New York physician.

CHILEAN NAVY LISTS DEMANDS

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 18.—(AP.)—The Chilean Navy, which had a part in the counter-revolt that placed a new junta under Carlos Davila in power yesterday, presented a demand for its own autonomy to the new government today.

The Navy asked three things—its own return to its former place in the cabinet, with its own minister instead of being under the Ministry of National Defense. The right to have its own air force, and that elections be held to choose a new president as soon as convenient.

The new junta was completed last night when Nolasco Cardenas, a former deputy, was sworn in as a member.

BUENOS AIRES, June 18.—(AP.)—The correspondent of the newspaper La Nacion at Mendoza, Argentina, reported today it was understood there former President Carlos Ibanez, of Chile, would return to Chile today or tomorrow.

Jury Fails to Agree On Brew Destruction

CHICAGO, June 18.—(INS.)—The question of whether the government should destroy $25,000 worth of home brew materials seized in a raid on the store of Joe Grein and J. Pahls proved yesterday to be too weighty for a jury in Federal Court. Unable to come to an agreement after 23 hours, the jury was discharged by Judge Woodward.

Clarence Darrow was one of the defense counsel.

gulfed by advancing waters hundreds of years ago.

THE WATERS that came rushing in, covering the city, are now retreating from the shore line. In years to come, Moscow scientists will walk the dry streets of the ancient city.

What sort of government will Russia have then? One thing is sure, intelligence will rule and take profits, average dullness will work, and take what is given to it.

Old Cheronesus interests, and should encourage us. The sunken city will come back into the sunlight. Our sunken industries and prosperity will do the same, and sooner.

STUDENTS OF Stevens Institute of Technology, in Hoboken, have burned "Old Man Calculus," in a great bonfire. Calculus is the young men's bugaboo, the burning is an annual celebration. But, without Calculus, the labors of mathematicians, for generations past would have been a tedious nightmare.

Every student should bless the name of Newton, who invented differential calculus for use in his abstruse calculations.

He kept the secret to himself, for a time, not from selfishness, but without thinking, and mazed the world of mathematics, when, with the aid of "Old Man Calculus," he solved, quickly, with great ease, a complicated problem, with which Europe's mathematicians had been wrestling for a year.

NORRIS URGES PUBLIC WORKS; JOBS FOR ALL

Opposes Cash Bonus, Makes Eloquent Plea for Billions In Bonds to Meet Crisis

been criticized for voting against the bonus, he said.

OPPOSES DISTINCTION

Declaring he would vote for payment if he thought it could be done without endangering the government's financial standing, he said that veterans constitute perhaps less than a third of the total unemployed, and added:

"If we are patriotic, we certainly have a sympathy for the man who bared his breast to the enemies of the country. I conceded that, but when it comes to suffering, when it comes to taking care of those that are suffering, when it comes to clothing the naked and warming those who are shivering with the cold, there can be no distinction.

"We cannot turn our eyes away from human suffering. In a country bursting with an oversupply of food, we have millions of people suffering for the necessaries of life; and in my opinion the only thing that is going to start it is an unemployment measure on a countrywide scale, with billions behind it; and that means that the soldiers who are here now asking for the passage of this bill will get the jobs the same as everybody else.

SEES GREAT PERIL

"I see no way to escape that condition. Much as I dislike to see my country issue bonds in time of peace, I think we will have to come to this conclusion, Mr. President—that our country's life is in more danger today than it was either before or during the great World War.

"The greatest crisis confronts us now, and the crux of it all is this: Let men who want to work have work so that they can buy the food that the farmer produces, so that the men who are selling clothing and food will be able to hire their clerks and pay them wages; so that the factories that will make the tools and the other machinery that will be necessary to carry on a great unemployment campaign will all have their wheels started and business commenced again; and in its thousands and thousands of deviations, employment and prosperity will come up everywhere.

"It is not a desirable condition, I admit, even to carry out that program; but if anybody has a better one I should like to follow him. If anybody has any other plan that will give jobs to the unemployed, I should like to help him get it."

BENEFIT IN MARCH

The Senator recalled he had said it was a "mistake" for the bonus marchers to come to Washington, and continued:

"I am reaching the conclusion now that the coming of this vast army is going to accomplish a world of good.

"In the first place, it has convinced the country, it has convinced Congress, it convinced everybody, that these men are the highest type of citizenship; that these men, orderly and sober and industrious, are only asking for a right to live under the flag for which they fought.

"The way to let them leave is to give them jobs. Let them keep the evidence of indebtedness that the government of the United States owes them, to be paid in the future.

"Give them an opportunity to work.

"Give them an opportunity to earn something upon which to live and to support their families.

JOBS PREFERRED

"That is what they need. That is what 99 per cent of them would rather have than to have anything else. Give them an opportunity, and, while you are giving it to them, give it to all their brethren, whether soldiers or not, in this country, to work, to earn a living, instead of becoming subject to charity, and to have jobs to earn their own living, to earn their own money and thus start the wheels of prosperity to turning.

"If this will not work, if this will not do, then I do not know what will. If something of this kind will not work out, then our civilization is doomed. I see no escape from it. They are like our other citizens who are unemployed. They want work, and we ought to see to it that they get work.

CHARITIES DRAINED

"I would rather issue bonds and give jobs than to issue bonds and use the money for charity; and that is what we will have to do. We have gone through one winter without taking the federal government into the picture, and it has drained the nerves and the capacity and the patriotism of all the charitably inclined people throughout the United States to carry on during that winter.

"They cannot do it another winter. If we had started last December and enacted the laws, we would have been able when spring came to put millions of men to work, and the scene we have today would not be here."

Senator Norris said that if Congress, following defeat of the bonus bill, "does not do something for the unemployed," and if the President should veto a public works program, he would then support a bonus payment bill.

WELFARE HEAD DECLARES TALBOT RELIEF MEASURE FUTILE

MANY HOLDUPS CONFESSED BY YOUTH

Calmly Tells of Robbing Two Theaters, Stores, Doctor; Clears Convicted Man

Confessing to many robberies, Dominick DeRenzo, 21, of 1910 Fifth avenue, and many other addresses, stood blandly before visiting Judge J. Frank Graff, in Criminal Court, and recounted slowly, so a court stenographer could catch his every word, job after job, which he said he had perpetrated. His testimoney will be used against him before the grand jury, where a long series of indictments will be asked.

DeRenzo was taken from jail, where he had been awaiting trial on a charge that he committed the recent Warner Theater robbery, to be questioned on two robberies of Dr. L. G. Ignelzi, of 109 Shetland avenue.

Earnest Scarillo, alias Shark, 22, of 1910 Fifth avenue, found guilty of the Dr. Ignelzi robberies two months ago, asked for a new trial on grounds on newly-discovered evidence. Judge Graff granted a preliminary hearing, but the question will be formally argued before a full bench at regular argument court.

The new evidence charged DeRenzo, and not Scarillo, committed the robberies.

FACES DOPE CHARGE

DeRenzo began by saying he does not know Scarillo, although both live at 1910 Fifth avenue. He stated he had not been under the influence of dope, although admitting he is also being held by the Federal narcotic authorities for trial later. He said he always carried two guns and owned a third.

DeRenzo said he robbed Dr. Ignelzi on two occasions, at the point of a gun, getting $45 once, and about the same amount the second time. He also took a bottle of ether, which he said was to use to put intended victims to sleep.

ADMITS THEATER JOBS

Then he said he robbed the Warner Theater and the Rex Theater. He went on to tell that he was the man who twice robbed the Alberta drug store at Larimer and Shetland avenues, shooting a clerk on one of the occasions. He concluded his testimony by saying he robbed a news agency in Ellsworth avenue at the point of a gun recently, securing $50.

Pilgrims to Eucharistic Congress Jam Dublin

DUBLIN, June 18.—(AP.)—Dublin was giving last-minute touches to her more than a year's preparation for the Eucharistic Congress, which will be held here next week.

For weeks pilgrims to the great religious convention have been trickling into Ireland, but in the last three days the trickle has swollen into a rushing stream, taxing housing, but not Irish hospitality.

Dublin wears a festive air, a kind of quiet gaiety. Streets are garlanded with Irish flowers—wild roses often—house fronts are newly painted, yards are neat and pavements swept clean. And however humble the cottage, the curtains at the window are as snowy and stiff as washing and starch can make them.

Although the Congress proper does not open until next Wednesday, actually it will begin tomorrow with a general communion of men throughout Ireland and a triduum for the success of the Congress in the evening in all churches in the Dublin archdiocese. Since June 5 there have been special religious services as part of the Congress program.

Monday afternoon the representative of Pope Pius XI, Cardinal Lauri, will arrive, and his welcome will be the first of the colorful demonstrations the week will provide.

A number of first offenders and other prisoners whose terms have nearly expired are expected to be released by the government as an act of grace for the opening of the Congress.

Blue Law Debate Rebuttal Arguments Go on Air Tonight

duct of people on Sunday in 1932.

USED SPORADICALLY

"As a matter of fact the blue laws are dead, except for one purpose. They are used sporadically by certain organizations to prevent great numbers of people from doing what they want to do on Sunday.

"Relgion need not be a dour thing and Sunday need not be a day of gloom. You cannot force people to church by denying them harmless pleasure. If the blue laws are repealed the result will be, not a falling off in church attendance, but an increase of it.

"I have never known of any prosecution brought to prevent the playing of golf on Sunday or against private clubs for giving motion picture performances on Sunday night. What fairness or wisdom is there in such procedure?"

ANCIENT QUESTION

Dr. McQuilkin declared the question is one more ancient than the Pennsylvania law. He said:

"We are dealing with the law of the Eternal God delivered through Moses to all nations for all time 3,200 years ago, a law never revoked, never amended or modified and from which no successful appeal has ever been taken.

"I am opposed to the repeal of the Sabbath law because it finds its basis of legislation in two inalienable human rights, of rest from toil one day in seven, and the right to worship if one wills.

"My second reason for opposing repeal is the law itself, it takes a mighty good law to stand for 128 years with all the possibilities of repeal and court decisions. Each Supreme Court decision brings the law up to date.

"My third reason for opposing repeal in several recent attempts has been that the folks who proposed the repeal are not friends of the Christian Sabbath and not interested in its proper observance. Many of the proponents advocate a wide open European Sunday."

Other reasons for opposing repeal, Dr. McQuilkin said, were that no proper substitute has been offered, and the proponents of repeal are proposing a dangerous thing.

BLEACHER FALL INJURES 40

READING, Pa., June 18.—(AP.)—Collapsing under the weight of several hundred automobile race fans, a bleacher at the Reading Fair Grounds collapsed last night and injured approximately two-score persons, 21 seriously enough to be taken to hospitals.

All the injured are from this vicinity, except James Givens, 24, of Philadelphia. All were released from the hospitals after treatment for scratches and bruises.

About 200 persons were thrown from the bleachers when a portion about 100 feet long gave way. They had been seated on the two upper rows of the stand.

A moment before the collapse, the large bleacher section, almost to a person, had risen to its feet to watch a skidding car make a desperate turn. A crackling of wood was heard beneath the stand and a moment later began to sag, throwing the crowd to the ground.

Police and National Guard troops took charge until help could be summoned from Reading.

Jail Dog With Master In West End Lockup

Patrolman Thomas Staley called for reinforcements when an Eskimo dog leaped at him when he attempted to arrest a man on a charge of drunkenness in West Carson street yesterday. When the patrol arrived the crew fought off the dog until its master was carried into the wagon. But when they drove away the dog leaped into the patrol and rode with its master to the West End Police Station.

The man was docketed as John McShane, 33, of Chestnut street. The dog whined around his master's cell until the sergeant opened the cell door and admitted the canine.

ALIBIS OFFERED FOR DONOHOE DEFENDANTS

Counsel Seeking to Show Bledsoe, Stengoni Were Not at Scene of Slaying

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 18.—With a mass of conflicting stories already placed in evidence in the John Donohoe murder trial, defense counsel for R. C. Bledsoe and Cosmo Stengoni today declared they would produce reputable men and women to establish alibis proving Bledsoe and Stengoni were not at the scene of the slaying.

The alibi witnesses were to occupy the greater part of today's session. Mrs. Anna May Maratibo, who was visiting at the home of Angelina Aiello near Masontown the night Donohoe was slain, declared yesterday that Stengoni was at home that night. Her husband Leo corroborated her story.

Believed by some and doubted by many, Tony Bell's confession of the slaying of the constable and former state trooper, in which he implicated three others, was branded today as a "frameup" by Attorney James B. McKenna, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Prisoners who occupied the same cell block as Bell in the Buffalo jail had the same opinion, according to the attorney. He said he talked with Robert Fisher, Charles McElroy, Ted Dawson, a prisoner by the name of Brown and others.

NEW PAYMENTS FROM CLOSED BANKS NEAR

Large Disbursements Seen By Official; Securities Are Held For Better Prices

With the liquidation of assets of closed state banks progressing favorably, "sizeable amounts" will, within a few months, be available for distribution to depositors, Prescott L. Lyon, vice president of the Second District Realization Corporation, formed to help wind up affairs of the closed banks, announced today. He said:

"Dividend payments will continue as fast as we can realize on the assets of the closed institutions. In some instances funds are accumulating that will make possible substantial payments. Securities are not being thrown on the market for what they will bring, but the market is being closely studied and securities showing good prospects are held for a rise to a level determined upon by the stabilization corporation's officers."

It was announced Charles L. McCune, disbursing agent for closed state banks, distributed $1,985,000 to depositors in 12 institutions, of which about $1,000,000 went to depositors in the Pittsburgh district. More than $70,000,000 of depositors' funds is said to remain in 26 closed state and national banks in Allegheny County.

The Bank of Pittsburgh is said to have paid 50 per cent, under an arrangement with the First National Bank at Pittsburgh, which assumed part of the assets of the closed institution. A total of $750,000, or 20 per cent, has been paid by the Highland National Bank.

CHAIR PENALTY IN WIFE KILLING

MILLERSBURG, O., June 18.—(AP.)—The first death chair verdict for murder ever imposed by a Holmes County jury was returned last night against Herbert Meeker, farmer, for the slaying of his young wife, Gertrude.

Meeker was found guilty after the jury deliberated seven hours. His wife's battered body was found in a creek near here May 9. The verdict, failing to include a recommendation of mercy, makes death in the electric chair mandatory.

The convicted man said Mrs. Meeker was slain by Harold Young, 19, a relative, who committed suicide when officers went to his home. Young struck her with a tire pump while the three were riding in an automobile, Meeker testified. Young intended the blow for Meeker, the latter said. The state contended Meeker participated in the killing in the hope of collecting insurance on his wife's life.

U. S. LEVIATHAN GOES AGROUND

LONDON, June 18.—(AP.)—The United States liner Leviathan was aground for less than three-quarters of an hour today off the Isle of Wight, a message received by Lloyds Agency here said, but she got away again without difficulty or known damage.

The liner was reported hoisting the signal "Not under control" at 7:40 a. m. on the Dean Sand approaches to Spithead. It was due in nearby Cowes roads from Bremen this morning to take on passengers for New York, brought out by tender from Southampton.

Last of Gardens To Be Apportioned

PRIVATE FUNDS STILL CARRY BURDEN

Direct Aid in Penna. Costs $3,000,000 Month; Pleas Increase as Support Wanes

Three million dollars a month is being spent for direct relief of unemployment in Pennsylvania, the Welfare Fund estimated in a report made public today. The estimate is based on figures for 10 Pennsylvania cities reported by the Children's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor.

This is an increase of 33 per cent over the relief expenditures last February, and 57 per cent over March of 1931.

At this rate relief will total $36,000,000 annually, while only $10,000,000 has been provided by state funds.

R. Templeton Smith, president of the Welfare Fund, in making public the report, said:

"Some idea of the inadequacy of privately raised funds is gained from the fact that less than $20,000,000 has been raised in the entire state for operation of all types of welfare work depending on voluntary support. In Allegheny County the $2,500,000 raised by contribution to the Welfare Fund for unemployment relief was exhausted last March. Since that time we have been using the state money made available through the Talbot act.

"The fact that this money has been taken from hospital and institution appropriations means that actually almost no additional funds have been made available.

"The result has been that practically the whole burden has been thrown back upon private, voluntary support at a time when it is physically impossible to secure amounts in this manner adequate for the need."

City Bond Issue Urged For Direct Relief Work

An ordinance asking for an $800,000 appropriation from the people's direct relief bond issue may be asked of City Council Monday by the Allegheny County Emergency Association, it was revealed today.

Frank R. Phillips, chairman of the association's operating committee, told Councilmen he believed it would be to the advantage of the taxpayers to finance direct relief for the needy and unemployed through sale of the bonds than to spend $258,906 remaining in the emergency welfare fund. The information was given Council after it was determined money available from the Talbot act for direct relief would be exhausted by June 24.

The bond appropriation, if authorized, will be from part of the $3,000,000 issued authorized by the voters at the last election for direct relief.

2 HELD INSANE IN STARVING

BALTIMORE, June 18.—(AP.)—The mother and brother of the 26-year-old cripple, starved to death 10 weeks ago "to drive out devils that possessed him," were found insane and not legally responsible for his death in a verdict given late yesterday by a coroner. They were ordered held in a local hospital and will be committed to an institution later.

Mrs. Annie Aubel, 55, mother, and Paul Aubel, 30, brother of the cripple, Grant Aubel, an arthritic victim, were examined today by two Baltimore alienists.

The body of Grant was found on a couch by police yesterday. A diary, kept by Paul Aubel, said Grant had died April 4 and predicted his resurrection on June 24.

Repeating that "God knows all about this," both Mrs. Aubel and her son said they had not given him food since "March 20 because the Lord told us to starve him to drive out the devils."

Bridge 'Just Rules' To Jacoby's Bride

KANSAS CITY, June 18.—(AP.)—Mrs. Oswald Jacoby, the tennis-playing bride of the New York bridge expert, admits bridge still is "rules" to her and also says her husband consistently defeats her in tennis. They have been married eight weeks. Mrs. Jacoby, formerly Mary McHale, Dallas society girl, said:

"I've been playing bridge only eight weeks, but its still just rules, rules and rules to me. And Mr. Jacoby won't let me play with anyone else."

Mr. and Mrs. Jacoby are visiting here.

Inquiry Follows Fire in Monessen

MONESSEN, Pa., June 18.—Investigation was being made today into a fire of mysterious origin, which swept through a meat market operated by Emmanual Feldman, at 432 Donner avenue, with an estimated loss of $5,000. Hausner, Saved at Sea, To Try Flight Again

LONDON, June 18.—(AP.)—Stanislaus Hausner, Polish-born American flier, rescued from the Atlantic a week ago today after failing to fly from New York to Warsaw, plans to try the flight again this year, he said in a message received from him today.

The message was sent from the freighter Circe Shell, which picked him up out of the sea 500 miles off the coast of Portugal and which is taking him back to the United States.

Hausner asked if it were possible for the British government to send a training ship to salvage his plane, abandoned at the spot where he was rescued. He said it would keep afloat for a week or more.

Hausner revealed he flew 28 hours before he was forced down into the ocean. He said:

"I was forced down at 7 o'clock Saturday evening, June 4, after 28 hours of flying. My greatest suffering is the loss of my plane. I hope to fly to Warsaw this year.

"I was not injured and have recovered completely from my experiences during the week I was adrift on the ocean.

Follow These Simple Rules—Read the Prize Lists

(1) The Movie Lovers contest will consist of a series of 60 cartoons to appear in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph—one each day for 60 consecutive publication days—starting Monday, June 6th. The contestants are to find the correct title for each picture from a list of motion picture titles that will be printed every day, scattered among the WANT ADS every day throughout the life of this contest. Mere lists of answers will not be accepted as an entry. The answers must be accompanied by the pictures you think said answers represent. Do not submit any pictures or answers until the entire set of 60 has been printed. Entrants are advised against an elaborate arrangement in submitting entries. Remember, the awards will be made for correctness of identity of the pictures, correct spelling of titles in your entry and neatness. Misspelled titles in your entry will be counted as total errors.

(2) The contest is open to everyone living in Pittsburgh or within 100 miles of Pittsburgh, with the exception of employes of the Sun-Telegraph and of WCAE, Incorporated, or any member of their families.

Patricia Pitt

A huge crowd was in attendance at the new Patio, formerly Sanders Inn, last night, at the benefit for the Falk Clinic, sponsored by the Free Dispensary Aid Society.

Smart young things in jewel-bright gowns made the attractive Patio colorful as a garden. Among the early arrivals were the T. A. Mellons and with them were the Frank Adair Leovys. Mrs. Leovy was wearing ecru lace with a black velvet wrap. Seated at one of the tables were the T. M. Joneses, III. Mrs. Jones' gown was one of the most attractive there. It was of tanbark crepe, printed with a large flower design, and her short matching jacket was bloused at the waist and had cape sleeves.

I caught a glimpse of Genevieve Bell as she arrived with Mrs. R. S. Rust. Mrs. James McKay wore a smart red cotton eyelet gown, and I saw Ruth Willock in blue crepe and Katharine Frazer in brightly flowered crepe.

Gown of Chiffon

Harriet Fickes was there, too, and Rita Borntraeger at one of the tables I saw wearing a blue and red printed chiffon frock. Helen Tunnell was charming in shell pink lace and net, with tiny ruffles at the hipline. The Harvey Childses, III, were among the throng, and Mrs. Childs had chosen a gown of blue and white printed crepe with a black velvet jacket, and Marjorie Kimball was in white crepe. I saw Phyllis Totten in pink chiffon, and Louise Reed in white satin and an unusual blue satin wrap, with Richard King Mellon.

Mrs. Dorwin Donnelly wore maize chiffon, having the matching jacket banded with kolinsky. Sapphire blue crepe with brief, puffed sleeves was chosen by Mrs. E. P. Mellon, II, and blue chiffon with a blue velvet knee-length wrap having a long scarf draped from one shoulder was the choice of Mrs. Alexander Laughlin.

Mrs. Reginald G. Quaile's gown was of cream chiffon, wth wide bands of black lace inserted in the full skirt ,and banding the cape collar.

Wears Yellow

Lucretia Billings was most attractive in a chartreuse yellow gown, with a three-quarter black velvet wrap. Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe, Jr., I caught a glimpse of seated at a table near the pavilion, and Mary Franklin Robinson in blue crepe having short sleeves.

Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland's costume was of red and beige chiffon with a beige velvet jacket banded with kolinsky, and Mrs. Arthur Woolfolk wore beige crepe printed in red and black.

An unusual creation of black chiffon embroidered with cream dots was worn by Betty McKay. I saw Rebecca Doyle, in green crepe, and Mrs. R. Green Annan, in black net and lace, and the Herbert A. Mays, with Mrs. May in black and white crepe.

Lydia Irish was in flowered chiffon, and Bertha Brooks in red crepe, embroidered with sequins.

Gowned in Black

Virginia Goldsbury, I saw, in black chiffon and ecru lace; Jane Allderdice in blue crepe; Helen Leovy in black crepe with a bustle effect, and long cream velvet wrap; Mrs. Alan S. Humphreys, in red and beige flowered crepe; Mrs. George H. Love, in blue, red and beige printed crepe with an electric blue velvet jacket.

Mrs. William Lloyd Standish wore brown and white flowered chiffon and Mrs. Blair Childs chose blue and cream chiffon, having a cape edged with a ruffle.

Also I noticed Mrs. Gordon Fisher, Jr., dancing in a flowered chiffon gown, and Mrs. J. H. Ricketson III, in white linen lace. Mary Black chose blue and white crepe; Mrs. Raymond Hilliard, brilliantly printed flowered crepe; Susan O'Neill, in sapphire blue chiffon, and Laura Evans in flame red chiffon with a matching jacket having elbow-length sleeves bordered with a deep pleated ruffle.

Ellen MacClay wore lipstick red chiffon having a full, ruffled skirt.

Clara Elizabeth Bell Weds New York Pastor

Miss Clara Elizabeth Bell, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Sheridan Watson Bell, of Morgantown, W. Va., formerly of Pittsburgh, and the Rev. Charles Marvin Styron, of New York, were married Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Morgantown. The bride's father is a former pastor of the South Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, of Wilkinsburg.

The mother of the bride gave her in marriage, and her father was officiant. The bride's gown was of ivory satin, in princess mode with a veil of Brussels lace falling from a cap of lace and orange blossoms. Her flowers were white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Helen Halliday, of Nashville, Tenn., as maid of honor, wore blue crepe Elizabeth made with a cape, and had a Dresden corsage.

The bridesmaids, her two sisters, Mrs. A. W. Wishart, of Washington, Pa., and Mrs. J. R. Wylie, Jr., of Wilkinsburg, and Elizabeth Storer, of Wilkinsburg, wore similar gowns in pastel pink, green and yellow, and had Dresden corsages.

The little flower girls, nieces of the bride, were Martha Corinne Wishart and Virginia Bell Wiley, who wore pink French voile frocks with blue for accent, and carried roses.

Sheridan Watson Bell, Jr., brother of the bride, was best man, and J. R. Wiley and the Rev. A. W. Wishart, of Washington, Pa., were ushers. A reception for 50 guests followed in the Bell home.

In September, following a southwestern wedding trip, Mr. Styron and his bride will be at home in New Britain, Conn.

Congress Group Gives Garden Party

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Nearly 200 women, all frocked in the gayest of summer hues, attended the garden party given yesterday by the literature department of the Congress of Clubs at Mrs. Ross Thomas' home, Brownsville road. The gardens and spacious, shaded lawns made a lovely setting for the affair and one well adapted for the afternoon's plans. The wide veranda was a convenient rostrum from which the program of music was given; the lawn itself held the card tables and also served as stage for Miss Helen Bennett to dance upon, and high up in one of the great trees is a little platform that gave the necessary privacy to the fortune teller and his clients.

Recital Given

A trio composed of Virginia Wellman, harp; Ruth Cooley, 'cello, and Janet Spaugh, piano, gave a delightful recital. Barbara Bess Wellman, Adele Eggers Furniss and Brabazon Rutherford added vocal solos; Mrs. Constance Neville-Johns, of Australia, by request, gave a Maori song and a native bird call, and Alexander Kann contributed a reading.

Mrs. Richard Sappington Giese and her group of charming young aides served punch and cakes, and last night the girls remained for a party of their own.

Sunday Law Debate Rebuttal On WCAE; Bert Lahr Makes Radio Debut

Rebuttals in the debate between Attorney C. F. C. Arensberg and the Rev. Dr. James McQuilkin, of the Carnegie United Presbyterian Church and director of the Western Pennsylvania Sabbath Association, on the question, "Resolved, That the Pennsylvania Sunday Laws Should Be Repealed," are heard from WCAE tonight at 8 o'clock.

Arguments in the debate were presented from the station last night. Each speaker is allotted seven minutes for rebuttal tonight, with Dr. McQuilkin scheduled to speak first.

Mr. Lahr

Bert Lahr, comedian of the current Broadway success, "Hot-Cha," makes his debut in his first extended broadcast series as star of the Saturday night cigaret dance hour on WCAE at 10. Walter O'Keefe, master of ceremonies, introduces the funster, who, heretofore, has avoided the microphone as much as possible. The musical portion of tonight's program is presented by George Olsen and his orchestra, playing from New York.

A novel demonstration —"Voice beautifiers for political speakers"—with Stoopnagle and Budd speaking on a series of unnamed subjects, is presented by Orestes H. Caldwell, experimenting editor and engineer, over WJAS tonight at 8:45. Caldwell guarantees that he will change the voices of the Colonel and Budd, and that he could, if enough petitions were circulated, even arrange to change their accents.

Classical music of a lighter nature is heard during the Boston Symphony Orchestra Pop Concert, on WCAE at 9:30.

Fan Fare

Miss Seymour

Katherine Seymour, NBC assistant continuity editor, is still too young to be called a "veteran," although she has been a radio writer since the pioneer days of aerial drama... She prepared scripts for WEAF before NBC was organized, and has been in the service of the broadcasting company since its inception in 1926. Johnny Marvin's Oklahoma drawl is a natural one. He was born in a covered wagon while his parents were traveling through Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

B. A. Rolfe, knocked down by a taxicab once, slid under the car and by great fortune was not hurt, but as he was lying there, an alert traffic cop walked up and without any further ado, asked, "Do you think you can fix it mister?"... Rolfe didn't.

There are about seven big radio headliners who won't sing a song until Victor Young puts his okey on it.

Graham Harris, who opens a new concert series on the WEAF network June 27, is experimenting with an octet of French horns instead of saxophones.

Ralph Kirbery recently had a radio set installed in his automobile.

Joe Moss, according to reports, lives on a roof, has his offices on a roof and conducts an orchestra on the roof of a hotel... George Olsen wanted to play drums when he was a youngster, but his father wanted him to master the piano and violin ... So they compromised and he learned all three.

STOCK MARKET CHALLENGED BY FINDINGS

Exchange Reforms Urged To Curb "Lamb Shearing;" Margin Speculation Hit

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Disclosures of pool operations before the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency have challenged the New York Stock Exchange to demonstrate in the future that it has not been set up to act as a clearing house for suckers.

Two reforms would go far toward contracting the industry known as shearing the lambs.

Mr. Rukeyser

One would be an agreement by the banks, who are members of the New York Clearing House, to pool their information as to the loan, or collateral, value of leading listed stocks, and to publish such a joint list weekly. At present, each bank more or less independently fixes its own policy as to collateral value of stocks. The information at present is not available to the outside public.

FACTS HIDDEN

During the days of extravagant bull manipulation, suckers would have nibbled at the pool offerings much less freely if they had known what the leading banks were willing to lend against certain highly exploited stocks—frequently only a small fraction of the market price, instead of the customary 80 per cent.

The other reform has to do with margin speculation. In my opinion, the Stock Exchange should take steps to discourage pyramiding, either through insisting that additional cash be put up against additional commitments, or through fixing arbitrary collateral value for stocks, as the banks do. Unless in the future brokers exercise greater care in extending credit, making sure that the customer has other resources besides the margin he has put up, there will doubtless be a forcible move from the outside to divest unincorporated firms of the privilege of carrying on banking functions, which, strictly speaking, might better be reserved to chartered banks.

LIABILITY PLACED

Security distributors are more liable for misinformation than is commonly supposed, according to recent decisions in the New York courts. Summarizing recent cases, C. D. Williams, of the New York bar, points out in the New Republic:

"First, when a purchaser buys securities relying in part upon a misstatement by the seller, the purchaser may cancel his deal upon learning the true facts. That is to say, he may return the securities to the seller and insist upon being reimbursed, irrespective of the seller's good or bad faith, diligence or negligence. Second, is the case of a buyer of securities upon the advice of an officer of a financial institution making a business of giving such advice, and presumably having the means at its command to ascertain the truth. Though the purchase may not be made directly from the institution, but through a broker in the open market, nevertheless, if the purchaser discovers that the advice he acted upon contained inaccurate statements, he may demand reimbursement if he can prove that the misstatements were due to negligence.

"The third case is that in which a purchaser acts upon certain misstatements contained in the advertisement of a flotation of securities inserted in the newspapers by a syndicate of financial institutions. In this case there is no further contact between the purchaser and the sponsors of the issue, the purchase being made through a broker. Although the law is not so clear as to the rights of the purchaser in this category, the most urgent decisions indicate that the purchaser may recover his loss if he can prove that negligence was involved in the issuing of the misstatements."

Steel Scrap Prices Decline at Chicago

Actual transactions in the heavy melting steel scrap market have been scarce in principal centers the past week, but the tone of the general market has weakened again. At Chicago, dealers are offering scrap 50 cents to 75 cents a ton below recent quotations and heavy melting steel there is quoted at $5.75, with several other grades also soft. Other markets were very quiet and where sales occurred slightly lower prices resulted. Youngstown is an exception, with shipments to mills reported on the increase.

Selling Now Rumored as Largely Professional

NEW YORK, June 18.—(INS.)—The market had its downs yesterday after having had mostly ups for a week. Stocks looked pretty bad, but it would not be surprising if appearances were worse than they actually were, for support was beginning to make its appearance in the leaders around their lows. Selling is understood to have been largely professional, with a good deal of short selling mixed in.

So it's just as well to withhold conclusions and see how they act today. Stronger support should appear on a further reaction if any large-scale decline is to be avoided.

It doesn't seem logical, though, that the sponsors of the advance will give up the ghost now without at least one more try.

If for no other reason, they must be pretty well hung up with stocks and will naturally want to put them higher. Of course, the wheat break is disturbing; and omission of the dividend by Sears, Roebuck isn't an optimistic augury on the trend in grains. Yet it must be said that the fundamental situation in wheat does seem to warrant new lows at this time. A bullish factor, too, was that no one in the official Washington family came out with any ballyhoo after the last crop report, as Chairman Stone, of the Federal Farm Board, did after the May 1 forecast. At that time, when he predicted a 10-cent rise, he must have been looking the wrong way.

UTILITY FEES ATTACKED

NEW YORK, June 18.—Certain charges for managerial engineering, accounting and other services, made against operating companies of the Associated Gas and Electric System in New York state by affiliated non-utility service organizations, are held improper and not in the public interest by the New York Public Service Commission.

The state commission will order the 12 operating companies of the associated system involved to make no further payments to, nor make any further charges in their fixed capital or operating expense accounts for such fees, services and expenses of the service companies, unless those utilities charge such fees, service and expenses directly against certain accounts which will result in such charges and payments being borne directly and solely by the stockholders of the operating utilities.

Alco Products Gets Equipment Order

NEW YORK, June 18.—Alco Products, Inc., division of American Locomotive Works, has received an order for distillation equipment of 6,000 barrels capacity to be installed in the refinery of the Pure Oil Company at Smith's Bluffs, Tex., where extensive plant improvements are under way. Gasoline, fuel, oil, kerosene and furnace oil will be produced by the plant, which has been designed jointly by Alco and the Pure Oil Company.

WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

NEW YORK, June 18.—(AP.)—Bank clearings again show a heavy loss. The total this week, for all leading cities in the United States, as reported to Dun's Review, of $4,203,663,00 was 52.6 per cent less than a year ago. At New York City clearings were $2,842,022,000, a decline of 55 per cent, while the total for the cities outside of New York of $1,361,641,000 was 46.3 per cent smaller.

The decline this week is very heavy at practically every city, and the amount is $1,161,948,000 less than that of the preceding week. On the other hand, last year's clearings were $1,048,669,000 larger than those of the first week of June. In part, the latter reflects the payment of heavy corporation taxes, due at that time, a considerable part of which were paid in this week last year. This year the amount will not be so large and will, furthermore, not be reported until next week. The large declines shown above are due to this situation.

RESERVE BANKS TO CONTINUE PURCHASES

End of Gold Exports Will Make Open Market Policy More Effective in Future

NEW YORK, June 18.—(AP.)—There is excellent reason to believe that the Federal Reserve System will continue its policy of credit expansion, now in effect for over two months, until the life blood of easier money warms the body of everyday business, according to informed banking quarters.

The weekly Federal Reserve statements, made public today, show further progress toward the goal of abundant credit, and a number of leading bankers who play an important role in casting the financial policies of the nation are showing considerable enthusiasm.

WILL BUY LESS

While the reserve banks until recently had been purchasing government securities at a $100,000,000-a-month pace as means of forcing liquid funds into the nation's money reservoir, it is now believed by leading authorities that future purchases will be made at a slower rate.

Ending of the abnormally heavy tidal flow of gold to Europe primarily accounts for this change. The earlier phases of the Federal Reserve program, according to this viewpoint, achieved success in spite of the handicap of heavy seepage of gold to Europe. Now that this has ended, it is expected that the reserve program will be more effective.

The statement for the Federal Reserve System as of June 15 showed that the 12 banks held a total of $1,692,207,000 of government securities, a gain of nearly $50,000,000 for the week, and of $707,173,000 since April 13 when the new reserve policy of large scale buying of government obligations was begun.

Federal Reserve Bank credit on June 15 reached $2,270,000,000, a gain of $72,000,000 for one week and of $584,000,000 since April 13.

BALANCES DROP

Meanwhile, member bank reserve balances, which show the state of health of the commercial banks in much the same way that a bank account does for the individual, stood at $2,101,000,000. This was a nominal decline of $11,000,000 during the week, but $90,000,000 greater than on April 13.

Excess reserves of the member banks—representing the surplus of such reserves over actual needs—continued around $250,000,000, a figure which is providing the leeway for commercial banks to grant loans more readily to industry. In terms of potential credit, it is the base on which $2,500,000,000 of commercial loans might be made.

Steel Prices.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Steel prices unchanged.

UNEVEN TREND IN STEEL OUTPUT

Heavier Products at Low Level; Wire, Tin and Pipe Running Above February

By B. E. V. LUTY

Many steel producers attribute the recent marked decrease in steel demand to fear of Congressional actions detrimental to business, and expect or at least hope for improvement upon adjournament of Congress.

This week brought further decrease in steel ingot production, but by only one point, to a rate of about 16 per cent. There has been a larger decrease in certain lines than would be indicated by the decrease in total steel production, for in the last month and a half production of wire products, tubular goods and tin plate has run higher than in February, the high month in total steel production, and sheets have had only a small decrease, leaving the total decrease in steel production to the other finished products.

Movement of bars, shapes and plates has reached a very low level. Manufacturing consumers have grown still more conservative and structural fabricating shops have been at a low stage of activity, with prospects of an early increase as fully 110,000 tons of fabricated structural steel work has been let in the last four weeks and some releases against old contracts are expected, including Pennsylvania railroad work.

SHUN PRICE-CUTTING

Opinion is almost universal that there will be substantial improvement in steel demand before the end of September, while in some quarters there is expectation that improvement will be seen within two or three weeks, which would represent reversal of the usual seasonal trend. Everywhere there is belief that arrearages in steel requirements have been accumulating even though the country has been going at rather a slow pace.

It has developed that steel prices as stabilized some three months ago have not been altogether as rigid at all points as was popularly supposed.

Interest in price stability involves the long pull rather than the present situation as to profit or loss. With current production very light relative to overhead no ordinary prices would prevent losses. Prices in the long future will be in relation to prices in this period and it is desired to avoid a price cutting market such as prevailed late last year and early this year.

AUTOMOTIVE ORDERS LESS

Steel demand by the automobile industry is decreasing, Ford increases not balancing decreases elsewhere. Ford, producing at 5,000 daily, is at maximum and how long the rate will continue is problematical.

Railroad steel is back to almost zero, after a very mild season of demand for rails and track material. The tin plate industry continues to run at about 50 per cent.

Offerings of foreign steel, at much less than cost, are growing more troublesome. The tariff committee of the American Iron and Steel Institute is applying much pressure on Washington for an upward revision in duties, but there is no information as to probabilities of success.

The Pittsburgh district scrap market has remained in extremely dull condition. Dealers would now sell heavy melting at $9, or 25 cents under last sales, made at the beginning of the month, those sales having represented a 75-cent decline.

Pound's Reaction Hits Speculators

NEW YORK, June 18.—Foreign exchange speculators who recently have been switching their commitments from dollars into British pounds have suffered severe losses through the recent sharp break in sterling, according to exchange brokers.

STOCKS LOWER IN SLUGGISH TRADING

Sears Decline Reflects Dividend Rate Omission; Auburn, Lambert Slump

NEW YORK, June 18.—(AP.)—The stock market was sluggish but irregularly lower in the early trading today.

Sears, Roebuck was a soft spot, opening with a sale of 3,000 shares at 11⅞, off 1⅞, then sinking under 11, in response to omission of the dividend. Auburn and Lambert, also sank a couple of points in the first half hour, but changes in United States Steel, American Telephone and American Can were limited to minor fractions, and Case and Consolidated Gas were up fractionally.

Wall street banking circles were favorably impressed by the Senate's refusal to pass the veterans' bonus bill. While Washington advices consistently mirrored the view that this bill had little chance of final enactment, it nevertheless had hovered over the security markets as a potential cloud causing some misgivings.

In brokerage and other quarters, there was live conjecture over the possibility of further government steps to help the railroads. Interest centered especially in reports that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation might be empowered to give the carrier indirect aid in buying up their own depreciated securities. Such legislation, it was reasoned, might help the roads to strengthen their financial positions.

The dollar reacted moderately in early dealings following its recent sharp advance. Sterling cables were quoted at $3.62⅝, up 1⅜ cents, a recovery of about one-half the ground lost yesterday, while French francs were quoted at 3.93⅛ cents, up 1-16 point, but still below the gold export point.

PLAN BROADER R. F. C. POLICY

WASHINGTON, June 18.—An amendment to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation act increasing the usefulness of the corporation to the railroads is under discussion, according to Senator Walcot (Rep.), Connecticut. Mr. Walcott is a member of the Banking and Currency Committee.

There will possibly be an amendment which would enable the corporation to make loans more freely than at present. A railroad having par value stock outstanding to the value of $140,000,000 in 1928, for instance, which is now selling for $40,000,000, would be enabled to use its own funds to buy up and retire this stock or bonds as the case may be and better its financial position. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation would come in as a source of loans for the road if it had depleted its funds in such operations.

Abitibi Protective Committees Formed

NEW YORK, June 18.—Protective committees have been formed and are requesting deposit of bonds and preferred stock of Abitibi Power and Paper Company Ltd. This action follows failure of the company to pay interest due June 1 on its first mortgage 5 per cent gold bonds, Series A, due 1953, of which approximately $48,267,000 principal amount are outstanding.

Joseph P. Ripley, vice president of the National City Company, is chairman of the bondholders' protective committee, and Lieut. Col. Herbert Molson, president of Molson's Brewery, Ltd., Montreal, is chairman of the preferred stockholders' committee.

Rock Island Loan Of $10,000,000 O.K.'d

WASHINGTON, June 18—(AP.)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today authorized a Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan of $10,000,000 to the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company.

The loan is to be made to enable the road to meet $4,621,519.50 of interest obligations on its bonds and equipment trust notes; $4,375,000 to meet one-half of outstanding bank loans, and $1,003,430.50 of maturing equipment trust obligations.

Cancel Maryland Insurance Call

HARTFORD, June 18.—The Maryland Insurance Department has canceled the recently issued notices to companies operating in that state calling for a statement of conditions as of June 30.

Investment Bankers Uphold Activities of Protective Committees.

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

A STRONG PROTEST against the attacks leveled at bondholders' committees has been made in the interim report of the real estate securities committee of the Investment Bankers' Association of America.

While the committee declared that investigation has indicated that most reorganization committees are conducted honestly, the report does not favor the combining of a number of bond issues into a common pool.

The exceptionally great number of defaults of real estate mortgage bonds has attracted public attention to the methods followed in reorganizing the properties unable to meet their obligations. The conduct of the committees asking for the deposit of the bonds has been subject to severe criticism by writers on the subject as well as by individuals in the investment banking business.

Reorganization Profits Claimed to Be Large

AMONG THE CHARGES made against the bond holders' committees have been assertions that large profits have accrued to the organizations setting up these bodies and asking for the deposit of securities. The attackers also have declared that the holders of bonds have not received treatment to which their positions entitle them.

In most cases the committees asking for the deposit of bonds claim to be operating without compensation and declare that there are no hidden profits. Organizations which have been trying to work out tangles caused by the defaults of large numbers of bonds sponsored by single organizations claim that they have secured exceptionally good results for the bond holders.

The situations affecting the individual properties differ so widely and such a comprehensive investigation would be necessary to determine whether or not these committees are properly operated that a general opinion on the question cannot be given in this column. Comment has been made in the past on statements made by writers attacking the operation of these committees. The view of the Investment Bankers Association is now presented to show the other side of the question. At many times this association has been noted for its fearlessness and frankness in discussing such problems of ethics.

Committees Upheld By Bond Association

IN COMMENTING on these committees, the real estate securities committee of the Investment Bankers' Association says:

"There has been considerable uncalled-for criticism of bondholders' committees. The real estate securities committee has investigated a number of these committees and generally finds them composed of honorable, well-intentioned men who are doing their best to serve the bondholders. The work is thankless and difficult at best, and offers very little remuneration for the members of such committees, regardless of time and effort.

"There are well set methods of procedure for reorganization or foreclosure which form the framework on which bondholders' committees build their plans. We believe that each property presents its own problems which should be carefully analyzed by those engaged in the reconstruction work and that each property should be worked out separately. We do not as a general rule favor combining a number of bond issues and properties into a common pool. Each bondholder is entitled to his proportion of the security covered by his bond unshared with other bondholders, irrespective of whether the result be for the better or for the worse. The liquidation and distribution of properties put into a common pool will take expensive years of accomplishment."

SEE BIG WHEAT CARRYOVER

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The carryover of wheat in the United States on July 1 is expected to be about 360,000,000 bushels, as against 319,000,000 bushels on July 1, 1931, according to the Department of agriculture.

This does not include about 27,000,000 bushels of Farm Board wheat held in cheaper Canadian storage which would bring the total up to about 387,000,000 bushels. On July 1, 1931, about 15,000,000 bushels of domestic wheat were held in Canada, making the actual United States carryover 334,000,000 bushels.

While the prospective 387,000,000 bushel carryover will be a record one, it is considerably less than previous trade expectations, which ranged around 400,000,000 bushels.

Building Payrolls In State Gain 7.2%

HARRISBURG, June 18.—(AP.)—Employment in the building trades in Pennsylvania last month increased 6.6 per cent and payrolls increased 7.2 per cent, the Department of Labor and Industry announced.

This information was obtained in reports from 1,077 building contractors in 14 cities in the state. While the employment and payroll increases were reported, the department said they represented a 20 per cent increase from the March figures which were the lowest for the year. The usual increase in the three months following the year's lowest month, the department announced, is 46 per cent.

Treasury to Buy R. F. C. Note Issue

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP.)—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has authorized the issuance of $250,000,000 of six months notes maturing October 27 and bearing interest of 3½ per cent annually to meet its coming loan requirements. They will be purchased by the Treasury Department as funds are required.

The corporation was authorized by Congress to issue securities totaling $1,500,000,000.

The Treasury initially subscribed capital of $500,000,000, later bought $250,000,000 of the corporation's debentures and will purchase the notes authorized today as the funds are needed.

Ore Consumption Lower Last Month

CLEVELAND, June 18.—(AP.)—Furnace consumption of Lake Superior ore dropped 121,478 tons during May, the Lake Superior Iron Ore Association reports.

April consumption amounted to 1,039,799 tons compared with 918,321 in May. A year ago consumption was 2,674,758.

Three furnaces went out of blast in May, leaving 52 of the available 241 furnaces in blast.

Total tonnage of ore available at furnaces and on Lake Erie docks amounted to 32,699,957 tons on June 1, compared with 27,114,747 tons on the same date a year ago.

Farmers National Buys 18 Elevators

OGDEN, Utah, June 18.—The Farmers' National Grain Corporation has purchased 18 elevators and warehouses in Utah and Idaho from the Colorado Mill and Elevator Company of Denver.

This increases the Farmers National's storage capacity by 1,000,000 bushels and the number of elevators and warehouses owned in these two states to 48.

Big Cash Surplus Points To Regular Dividend On Gold Dust

Gold Dust Corporation is expected to declare the regular quarterly dividend of 40 cents a share at the meeting next week. The company has earned over 70 cents a share during the first five months of this year and will more than cover dividend requirements for the first half. With around $8,000,000 cash on hand and no funded debt, there seems no reason to look for a reduction in the rate at this time. Despite the comfortable margin of earnings over the current dividend rate and the expectation that the usual payment will be made, the stock has been selling in the market around $1 a share, or on a yield [illegible] of around 16 per cent.

The New York Stock Exchange bulletin for June contains charts showing the available statistics on the stock market short interest for the first five months of 1932, January 1 to June 1, inclusive. The June 1 short total of 2,060,633 shares was the lowest shown since the exchange inaugurated the compilation of these figures, on May 25, 1931. The ratio of in-and-out short sales, or transactions in which short commitments were made and covered on the same day, decreased to 4.75 per cent of the total transactions on May 31 from 5.66 per cent on May 2, after rising to as high as 9.10 per cent during the middle of the month.

Because of the "unprecedented" depression in the iron and steel industry, there will be no semi-annual distribution for holders of certificates of Great Northern Iron Ore properties this month, Louis W. Hill, president of the trustees, announced. The management had hoped, Mr. Hill explained, to pay a regular distribution of $2 annually, but, due to existing economic conditions, the trustees have deferred the minimum royalty requirements of a number of leases, thereby substantially reducing the income of the company during the present year. The last distribution on the certificates was $1 last December.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. omitted the quarterly dividend of 62½ cents on the common stock due at this time. Lessing J. Rosenwald, chairman of the board, said:

"Directors at the meeting today decided to omit a dividend payment. This action was taken in view of the difficulty at this time of estimating the earnings of the company for the year and as two quarterly dividends of 62½ cents per share have already been paid." The mail order house had paid regular dividends at the $2.50 annual rate since 1927, with stock dividends of various amounts in addition until this year. A change in the rate, however, had been forecast recently because of the continued decline of the dollar sales total, reducing the gross earnings despite economies.

There is considerable gossip relative to the market position of New York Central. One story going the rounds carried the implication that important holdings of the stock might be changing hands. In other quarters rumor was simply limited to the report that very substantial buying orders have been making their appearance in the issue. The street found such gossip difficult to absorb considering the none-too-satisfying position of the road. And the stock ruled lower yesterday, though it was a fact nevertheless that selling which developed was well taken.

Demand for copper products is said to be a shade better. Some fabricators experienced a fair increase in bookings when the excise tax appeared certain of adoption, and other manufacturers are now said to be placing business on their books. So far, buying of raw copper has not increased appreciably except in the export market, where sales are running at a somewhat higher level.

TIN MARKET FAVORS U. S.

A non-producer and the world's most important consumer of tin, the Commerce Department says, the United States has found itself in the position of being able to make purchases in "buyers'" markets throughout the world during the last few years. The world's visible supply of the metal at the end of April amounted to 50,716 long tons, the department said, whereas deliveries to the United States for the first quarter of this year amounted to 13,100 tons. Efforts have been made in tin producing countries to regulate output to meet market requirements, involving the countries of British Malaya, Bolivia, Netherlands, East Indies, Nigeria and Siam.

APRIL FURNITURE ORDERS OFF

April was by far the poorest month that the average furniture manufacturer has yet experienced, according to the monthly bulletin of Seidman & Seidman, accounts to the furniture industry. New orders and shipments during the month were approximately 45 per cent less than in the same month last year, and employment dropped 9 per cent as compared with March and 33 per cent as compared with April, 1931, it is stated.

ARGENTINE HIDE EXPORTS

According to a report received by the New York Hide Exchange exports of hides from the Argentine to all countries during the first quarter of the current year declined to 33 per cent compared with the corresponding period last year. The United States was the only country to show an increase in purchases of Argentine hides over the first quarter of 1931.

Gas Securities Recede On Small Transactions; Trading Volume Light

Prices were irregular during the short session on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, but fluctuations in all cases were confined to fractions and volume of business was on a small scale.

Harbison-Walker Refractories, which had not appeared in the market for several days, came in with a good-sized fractional advance and retained most of the gain. Lone Star Gas, on the other hand, was off slightly, as was Columbia Gas and Electric. Devonian Oil, reflecting the improved position of the producing companies, scored a fractional gain.

The quiet market here reflected the stand-off trading in New York, where the list washed back and forth in a narrow range except for a few isolated cases.

RETAIL TRADE IMPROVING

A slight improvement is reported in the sale of summer merchandise in the local district with the cheaper grades of women's wearing apparel moving in fair volume and there is also a moderate demand for lower priced shoes and hosiery, according to Dun's Review. A slight improvement is noted in the demand for men's straw hats, although the volume of business is materially lower than a year ago. Demand for men's clothing and shoes continues rather slow. The movement of dry goods continues quiet and there has been comparatively little future buying. Lack of rain has been detrimental to the crop situation in this district and prospects in that line are less favorable.

The industrial situation shows but little change. Construction work continues very light and dealers in lumber and other building materials report volume of business small.

Collections in this district continue to average slow.

Reunion in Manhattan

So, for a spell, we take our time of grace
And walk the town, a gay, enamoured pair,
With heartbreak quite forgotten for a space—
The while my roses fill your magic lair;
We have gone back to old accustomed ways
As if our parting was a ghostly dream,
And once again we fill the magic days
With whispered vow and vague romantic scheme.
Oh, Spring goes over, and how well I know
That love will flame to hatred at the last;
But we are drugged by memory and so
Before we feel the arrows of the past—
Let us walk down the highways we have known,
And view our kingdom, strangely overthrown.
—Don Wahn.

Newspaperman Stuff

The most renowned of the rotten acts was a sister team that cashed in on inability. For a time the girls prospered in the Midwest by inviting audiences to pelt them with stale eggs and vegetables, but their feelings were hurt, it seems, by a critic. And so they sued. This was in 1901.

The critic was Billy Hamilton, of the Des Moines Leader, and he said, in part:

"One of them is an old jade of about 50 and the other is about 40, the flower of the family, a capering monstrosity. They are hideous, their legs are like broom-handles, and they make horrible noises."

The case went to court, but the jury refused to act until it had seen the sisters perform. So their lawyer brought the sisters into court, where they did their turn. After which the jury gave its verdict.

The critic was not guilty!

As If We Didn't Know

And Norman Sullivan insists that times are tough—for nowadays the old shoes at the wedding are being worn by the bridegroom.

Observation

In a forthcoming flicker, Connie Bennett will be seen in the process of elevation to stardom. Some scenes in the movie, which deals chiefly with the Hollywood routine, were snapped in a well-known Hollywood restaurant and Connie is first observed as a waitress there.

But what gave some of us a jolt was learning that all the waitresses in that place were lassies who couldn't get any recognition from the cinema minds—and all of them were as lovely to look upon, if not lovelier, than Connie, who gets $30,000 a week.

The Final Thrust

W. J. A. relays the fact. A merchant was told that he had but a few days to live. He summoned his attorney and instructed:

"Make my will so my overdraft at the bank goes to my wife—she can explain it... My equity in my car to my son—he will have to go to work to keep up the payments.. Give my good will to the supply houses—they took some awful chances on me and are entitled to something... My equipment you can give to the junkman—he has had his eye on it for several years... I want six of my creditors for pallbearers—they have carried me so long, they might as well finish the job."

Nice Girl, Though

There has been much to say about the gorgeous but goofy girls of the Gay Canyon, but Vera Milton, who has been glorified by Mr. Ziegfeld, really says those things.

Last night, frinstance, the beautiful but numb darling said that she just loves to go home between the matinee and night shows to lie down and relapse!

By Way of Report

The most consistently played song of them all happens to be "Dinah," which for six years has appeared via the discs, the counter and the radio. It was prepared by Joe Young, Sam Lewis and Harry Akst, none of whom has received a centime in reward.

The publishers, it appears, were too tardy in settling accounts—and then went into bankruptcy—but this is not written to discourage the inspired. For Mr. Young of that trio has scored again—this time with "Lullaby of the Leaves," today's No. 1 hit.

"What," Young was asked, "inspires you lads to write such lovely songs?"

"Hunger," was the snapper.

In the Lindy Manner

Bobby Jones, the golf champion, was making one of his movie-shots, and Bugs Baer, the newspaper comedian, was among the onlookers.

Bobby's driver connected with the ball in the mighty manner—and the pill went on its flight.

"Whew!" whew'd another admirer, "look at that thing travel!"

"Yeh," observed Bugs, "that ball should have taken a sandwich with it!"

The Squelch Swelegant

During the rehearsals of the late "Heigh Ho, Everybody!" show, Jack McGowan encountered one of those conceited actors who refused to consider suggestions on how to improve his histrionics.

"Please don't waste your time," snapped the player, "I'm as high as I can get."

"Well," crushed Jack, "don't forget to take your parachute with you."

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Two East Liberty theaters are presenting new photoplays on their screens today. In the Enright the featured attraction is "The Strange Loves of Molly Louvain," in which Ann Dvorak has the central role, and is supported by Lee Tracy, Evalyn Knapp and Guy Kibbe. "The Wet Parade" is the principal film in the Sheridan Square and it has a cast including Walter Huston, Lewis Stone and Dorothy Jordan. Each of these pictures recently proved satisfactory to patrons of downtown theaters.

Charles A. Abbe, whose death in Darien, Conn., was chronicled in the telegraphic news of the Sun-Telegraph yesterday, was a Pittsburgh stock actor a number of years ago. He was comedian with the old Harry Davis company for about 10 years. Among other players in that company during his time here was Thomas Meighan, who later rose to prominence as a screen star. Mr. Abbe's best role here was "Charley's Aunt."

"Reunion in Vienna," Robert E. Sherwood's comedy for the Theater Guild, with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne starred, last night reached its two hundred and fiftieth New York performance. It will be the Lunts' last Guild play until after they have appeared in a comedy with Leslie Howard, some time next season.

Warner Brothers have purchased screen rights to the Einar Thorvaldson novel, "The Match King," which will be a starring film for Warren William. It is described as a story of a man "who outwitted the world's shrewdest financiers and used the world's most beautiful woman as pawns in his daring game."

Lawyer Film In Warner

By MARY SHINE

Ever since the Barrymores, Lionel and John, Warren William and one or two other stars of the screen, added to their laurels in roles of attorneys, it would seem that every male star has the same idea. It's another of these "lawyer in a courtroom" pictures in the Warner this week, "Attorney for the Defense."

There's nothing new in it, and what there is, is less well done than in similar pictures. There are too many close-ups of emotion-ridden faces; too many gaps filled with scenes of people stalking up and down corridors or dialing 'phone numbers.

Edmund Lowe is Attorney Burton in this case. First we see him as District Attorney, and, after sending his eighteenth man to the chair, his conscience works overtime and he becomes attorney for the defense. He raises his last victim's son as his own. The boy becomes implicated in a murder case, in which an old flame of Burton, played by Evelyn Brent, is the victim. About time for her demise, too, as she's bad and she's tricky and she bodes ill for our hero.

The scene that follows in the courtroom doesn't quite click, after we've been accustomed to more excitement in preceding "trial pictures."

Constance Cummings, as Lowe's secretary, with a will of iron under "that there" blonde demureness confesses her love for the attorney through his cell bars and thereafter "stands by." And if you can't imagine how that turns out, go to see "Attorney for the Defense," but don't forget to stay for the "Torchy" comedy.

Call on Author To Explain Puzzle

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Greta Garbo and Luigi Pirandello really ought to appear in person at the Penn Theater this week. She is the star and he is the author of "As You Desire Me," and they ought to explain what it is all about. It begins in the mists and ends in the clouds. The picture is nearly half finished when you begin to realize that it is about a lady who has disappeared from her castle during the Great War, and is found 10 years later, far from her Italian home, in the sinful alcoholic atmosphere of Budapest.

Mr. Seibel

At once the guessing begins as to whether she is herself or somebody else. Neither she nor anybody that knew her appears to be certain—even an intelligent police dog is vamped by her garbous glamor and commits canine perjury. That is, if she is somebody else and not really herself.

Eric von Stroheim fetches in a veiled lady who also has doubts about her own identity. A stage thunderstorm leads us to believe, for a little while, that the false impersonator will be struck by a bolt of lightning—but even the thunderstorm is fooled. Evidently the sneering villainy of Eric von Strohheim turns everybody against him—if he says it's black, they know it's white. But what is it, white or black? Greta and Luigi ought to appear in person to explain the muddled mystery of this dull and badly concocted film.

By comparison, and by its own merits, a Krazy Kat comedy called "The Birth of Jazz" is refreshing. The intellect, enfeebled by the struggle with Pirandellan relativity, rejoices as if meeting a blind tiger in the Sahara. And there's a grand parade in Moscow to balance the Republican convention in the newsreel.

'Tenderfoot' In Stanley Is Hit

By EDWARD W. GOSS

If there's any Republican in town with that woe-is-me feeling, induced by the Chicago gathering, they should see "The Tenderfoot," with Joe E. Brown, in the Stanley. The thing's a scream.

Joe is at his best. Then, too, he has a story reeking with rollicking gags and good situations. A combination like that is hard to top.

The directors shove two six-shooters into Joe's pants pockets, stick a lasso in his trusty right hand and send him forth to meet his fate in the bad-lands of New York. Joe loses no time in meeting up with his fate.

WANT TO SELL SHOW

Two crooked show producers, aided by a young beauty, played by Ginger Rogers, discover Joe has something like $20,000 in his money-belt, and they conclude it would prove lucrative if Joe were bilked into buying out their "flop" show. Joe being a trusting sort of a lad parts with his "wad" and finds himself in possession of an extremely pale elephant.

It is here the picture really gets down to work. Joe hits his stride and it's fast. Carrying out the traditions of the West, he shows "them thar" city slickers "he's wild an' wooly an' full of fleas an' ain't been curried above the knees."

IN SOME TOUGH SPOTS

Joe finds himself in some tough spots, but what of it! His India rubber face draws into grim lines. He buckles on his roscoes. He gets himself a hawse, digs in the spurs and yells "whoopee." And there he goes, folks. Off to rope himself a thousand laughs.

When it's time to pass out the backslapping Lew Cody, who plays a show producer, and Ginger Rogers should not be passed by. Their work is excellent. Short features include a Ruth Etting film and one with the Mills Brothers.

Songs

Dorothy Bushey, song and dance girl, is in the New Patio. She's Bernie Armstrong's wife. Other acts are ballroom dancing, acrobatic dancing and the Diana Sisters, radio entertainers.

BITS OF LIFE All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

FUNNY HOW success reacts on certain people. A few—very, very few—can take the mantle and wear it gracefully. The vast majority of successes become fools over night, both to others and themselves. Then, when the crash finally comes, they wonder why so few people will lend a helping hand.

In the Middle West, some six years ago, a very prominent stock player at the head of his own company took a liking to a kid who had applied for a job as an extra. The boy told the actor that his one great ambition was to be a successful actor and that he would sell his very soul to get to the top.

Impressed by the boy's earnestness, the actor gave him a job. More than that, as time drifted by, he actually put his heart and soul into coaching the youth so that he might get somewhere.

The boy learned and learned. He was soon playing second leads to the man who had befriended him. One day the boy came to his tutor and told him he was leaving.

"I'm going to try my luck on Broadway," he said, "and I'm pulling out the end of this week. I know what you have done for me, and I will never forget it as long as I live. Wish me luck, pal."

The youth kept his word and blew town at the end of the week. The actor looked for some word from his protege, but none ever came. By and by he noticed the kid's name in Variety. He had landed a job in a hit show on Broadway. He was doing well. The actor wrote him. No response.

Two years ago the boy became a full-fledged star. He had been drafted as the lead in a new play. After it had opened the critics raved over the boy. He was elevated to stardom. He had arrived—the one man in 5,000 to get there.

Still in the West, the stock player wondered why he never heard from this new star.

"Well," he argued with himself, "after all, why should I? Guess the kid's pretty busy these days. Can hardly blame him. Maybe I'll hit Broadway myself one of these days, and then we'll renew our old friendship."

The weeks went by. Some six months later the stock actor was asked if he would come to New York to play a character role in a new production. He accepted. In a few days he was on Broadway.

The first thing he did after unpacking his luggage was to rush over to the theater where his protege was playing. His heart was happy. Imagine seeing the kid again after six years. His pupil—now a star!

He sent in his card. If he expected the new star to rush out and greet him forthwith, he was mightily mistaken. He was told to wait. After what seemed to be a very lengthy period the boy finally stalked forth majestically.

The stock actor smiled and thrust forth his hand. The boy did not accept it. Instead, he dug into his pocket and drew forth a $5 bill.

"More charity," grumbled the youth as he placed the bill in the other's hand. "I'm getting pretty tired of it, I can tell you. Every old ham that I ever knew is around making a touch. Here. And please don't bother me again."

And he walked away . . .

Convention In Hearst News

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Vivid scenes of sessions of the Republican national convention are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. The pictures show the opening parade through the convention hall of the states; the impressive singing of the national anthem, and then the highlights of the keynote speech delivered by Senator Dickinson are heard. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, delegate from New York, is heard making his impassioned plea for a prohibition repeal plank. Many sidelights are pictured, as are numerous prominent men and women in attendance, with a vivid description of the entire gathering by the Globe Trotter. The current Hearst Metrotone News is on the screens of the Penn, Fulton and other theaters.

STALIN RALLY

From Soviet Russia comes sensational views of a tremendous rally in Moscow in which hundreds of thousands of citizens and soldiers join in immense parade before Stalin. The demonstration, which lasted all day and far into the night, shows branches of the Soviet forces, naval and military, marching past while hundreds of airplanes fly overhead. Innumerable men, women and children bearing flags and banners pass the stands and roar greetings to Stalin, who reviews them.

Gene Sarazen is seen in action on the famous course at Sandwich, England, where he won the British open golf crown and broke Bobby Jones' record by two strokes. Gene is shown in various plays with a big gallery enthusiastically following. Macdonald Smith, who won second place for Uncle Sam, is also shown making a phenomenal putt.

Striking pictures come from the English Channel, where a fleet of John Bull's destroyers fights a sham battle with imaginary enemy submarines.

HORSES RUN

At Aqueduct track, New York, unusual scenes are shown of race horses plunging through mud and water until the jockeys and their mounts are literally covered from head to foot with mire. The track is a veritable swamp, through which the mudders plow to a remarkably thrilling finish.

O'Brien Star In Davis

By MARGARET RUSSELL

If you like the thrill of fast moving horses, of spooky shadows, desperate Apaches, and a beautiful girl held captive by a ruthless villain, "The Mystery Ranch," film in the Davis this week, is the picture for you. Taken from Stewart White's novel, "The Killer," the story revolves around George O'Brien, an Arizona ranger-hero, and Cecilia Parker, "a lady in distress."

After many hardships and hair-raising experiences, the lady is rescued, the villain leaps over a cliff and the hero gives up ranging for managing the heroine's ranch. The story is trite, but lends itself to glorious outdoor scenic effects, and maintains a high degree of suspense and creeps.

TITLE FIGHT TOPS UNUSUAL PROGRAM

Jack Sharkey

ONE OF THE biggest weeks that the year will know in sports looms just ahead. There will be plenty to hold the attention of the fans at large from the running of the American Derby in Chicago and the holding of some eastern Olympic tryouts in Boston this afternoon until next Saturday night. For number, importance and variety of events the coming week stands out as a feature period, toplining a world championship heavyweight fight, with Jack Sharkey trying to bring the big title back to this country.

Monday will see the Wimbledon tennis championships opened in England and the big annual college regatta rowed at Poughkeepsie. Tuesday night will bring Sharkey and Max Schmeling into the ring at Long Island City. Thursday will witness the start of the United States open golf championship tournament on Long Island. Friday will find Yale and Harvard fighting it out in their annual rowing duel at New London. And that's not mentioning such local features as the first appearance of Kid Chocolate here Monday, the continuance of the West Penn tennis championships starting today, the return of the Pirates Friday and several other events not included in the ordinary run.

THE PART PLAYED by Pitcher Walter Stewart in the Browns' record of seven victories in eight games against Washington this season is another instance of the queer manner in which baseball form and fortune shift from streak to streak, even in individual cases.

In 1930, Stewart didn't lose a game to the Senators, taking them for five in a row. In 1931, he couldn't win a decision over them. They beat him six times and knocked him off the hill on one other occasion. This year he has not only defeated them twice already, but shut them out both times. If the old order of things holds good, the Johnsons are not due to beat him again until 1933.

THE MANAGEMENT OF the Boston American League club surely has done a big job of tearing down what little there was to tear down. The Red Sox aggregation of only two years ago is now little more than a memory.

In 1930, the club used 34 players. Only seven remain on the roster, these being Catcher Ed Connolly; Pitchers Horace Lisenbee, Bob Kline and Ed Durham, Infielders Harold Rhyne and Harold Warstler, and Outfielder Tom Oliver.

EVEN SINCE THE close of last season, the men in charge of the Red Sox have disposed of no fewer than seven of their best players in Catcher Charley Berry, former Grove City football coach; Pitchers Danny MacFayden, Milt Gaston and Jack Russell; Infielder Johnny Rothrock and Outfielder Earl Webb. Following the death of Pitcher Ed Morris, those men represented about 90 per cent of the club's strength, and the material obtained in exchange did not come close to making up for the loss, as Boston took cash in part payment in several of the deals.

Earl Webb

THOUGH EARL WEBB has done very well for the Tigers since they got him from the Red Sox in exchange for Dale Alexander and Roy Johnson, and Manager Bucky Harris says he is entirely satisfied with the results of the deal, the Tiger bosses did not land the kind of player they wanted.

Webb is a left-hand hitter, and what the Detroit club desired was an outfielder hitting right-handed, as the left-field fence, 338 feet, is the shortest drive at Navin Field. Every effort was made to obtain either Sam Byrd, of the Yankees, or Mule Haas, of the A's.

JOHNSON AND ALEXANDER, the same two players later traded for Webb, were offered to the Yanks for Byrd, but Joe McCarthy refused to consider the proposal, as he needs the right-hand hitting Byrd to relieve Earl Combs occasionally against left-hand pitching.

A similar offer was then wired to Connie Mack for Haas, but here again the Tiger bosses were out of luck, as that very afternoon Ed Coleman suffered a broken leg. Willing or not to trade Haas before that time, Mack was then forced to keep him to fill the hole caused by the loss of Coleman.

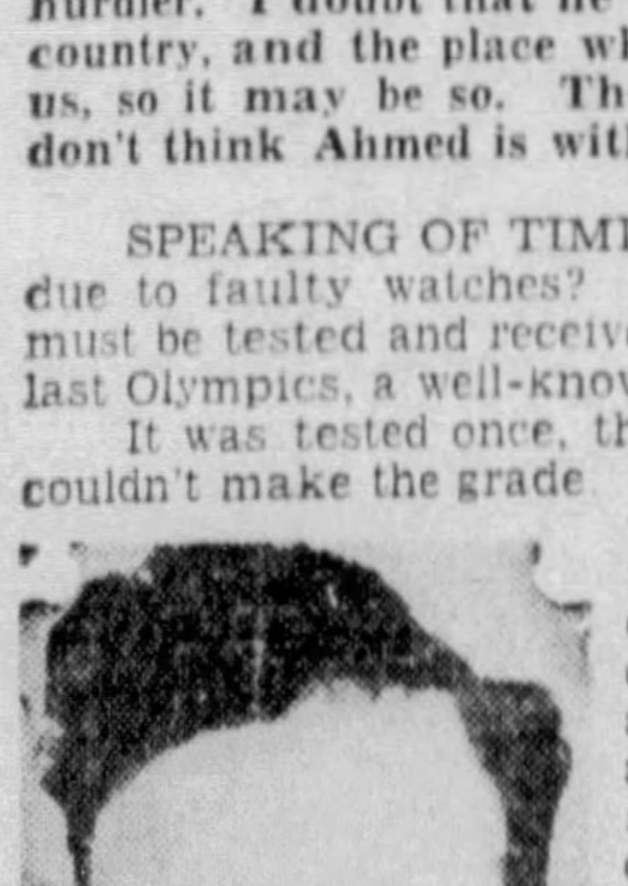
IT IS SUGGESTED that smart golf manufacturers will now start making 36-ounce drivers for practice purposes. For Gene Sarazen thinks that one of the reasons why he won the British open was the fact that he had been swinging a heavy driver ever since the fall of 1931. He never played with it. Just swung the club. His theory was that the extra weight would destroy the idea of wanting to hit the ball. It would make him swing perfectly and let the clubhead do the work. He won by five strokes, broke par on all but the last round, and was 13 under par for the whole distance, the best score ever made for 72 holes of championship golf. His theory would appear to have been borne out by results.

MEMBERS OF INDIA'S Olympic team, landed in California after a trip of 12,500 miles via Japan and Hawaiian Islands, were unable to add anything to the meager details received of the reported feat of Gulzar Ahmed, mystery miler, said to have run a mile in March in the unheard of time of 4 minutes 8.4 seconds.

"Our championship meet was held February 5 and 6, and at that time we knew nothing of Ahmed," said Capt. Merryn Sutton, a hurdler. "I doubt that he ever made such a record, but India is a large country, and the place where this miler lives is a long, long way from us, so it may be so. The rest of our team will be here soon, but I don't think Ahmed is with the group."

SPEAKING OF TIMING in running races, how many records are due to faulty watches? All the stopwatches used in the Olympics must be tested and receive an official seal before they qualify. At the last Olympics, a well-known Finnish timer brought his watch forward.

It was tested once, then again. The officials told him his watch couldn't make the grade. The Finn turned on his heel, indignant, and walked away. He was a watchmaker by trade. If a watchmaker's watch is wrong, one curious man asks, what can you expect of the ordinary pick-up timer's watch? He adds that you can buy stopwatches for $8 and they will give you results—but not good results. Col. Charles J. Dieges, one of the old guard timers in the East, has two stopwatches imported from Switzerland that cost $700 apiece.



Pete Bowen

ANOTHER FACTOR THAT may lead to faulty timing is pointed out by Lewis Burton, New York track expert, who contends that many speed records are made because all the timers happen to be wrong on the same day. He refers to a dishonest thumb. The timer may mean well, and may be thoroughly honest in mind, but if his heart is pulling for a runner it is apt to make his thumb act too hastily in stopping the watch. Burton presents some evidence in connection with the quarter-mile race won by Pete Bowen, former Pitt star, in New York last Saturday. Gene Venzke, great miler, was a spectator and held a stopwatch in his hand to time the race. "I was pulling for Bowen to finish in a hurry, and I got so excited in trying to get him over the finish line, that I must have stopped the watch too soon," Venzke says. "Anyhow, it read 45 seconds flat. Pete's official time was 48.4. I have a sneaking suspicion that I was wrong."

CRACK NETTERS TO DUEL IN INAUGURALS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The forty-fourth annual Western Pennsylvania tennis championship, historic title net event of the Steel City district, gets under way here this afternoon. The tournament, staged under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association and officially slated for the four clay courts of the Stanton Heights Golf Club, will monopolize for opening day four rectangles at the Pittsburgh Golf Club and another quartet at Pitt, as well as those on the Heights.

It is well accommodations aplenty are being provided is evident from the fact that contestants totaling in the neighborhood of the century mark are billed to compete.

Seldom, if ever before in the annals of the event, have so many attractive inaugural battles dotted the list. Though Bill Haseltine, defending champion, will not roll in from Philadelphia till tomorrow, when Marion Rinehart, ex-Pittsburgh giant will likewise arrive from the Quaker City, and though such redoubtables as B. F. Arkle, crack Wheelingite, Al Bialas, Jack Beatty, Bob Schmertz, and others will be unable to participate in the lid-lift festivities, a veritable flock of other high grade performers will be on hand.

STARS TO CLASH

Perhaps the leading brace of skirmishes on the card involve Ed Alcorn and Russ Unger, topflight Mt. Lebanon entrants, with the hard-hitting Beaverites, Johnny Hecker and Stewart Snodgrass, respectively. The former affair is set for Pittsburgh Golf Club and the latter for Pitt.

Additional P. G. C. frays of promise include those of Duane Littell, College Hill, and Vin Glidden, Stanton Heights captain; Sam Keller, Duke Coach, and Vernon Flinner, former Geneva southpaw; Chuck Maits, fast-driving Peabody product, and George Johnson, husky New Castle luminary, and Dr. John O'Loughlin, P. A. A. ace and first ranking Pittsburgher, and Bob Grier, Mount Lebanon High School forkhander. Panther engagements apt to offer thrills bring together, besides Unger and Snodgrass, Ralph Bald, Mount Lebanon teammate of Grier, with Bill Clardy, Westinghouse veteran mainstay, and Jack Redmond, P. A. A. portside find, with Lowell Wingerd, New Castle chopster.

HUGHES, WOODS MEET

Looming loftily on the Stanton sheet is fracas featuring Carlton Hughes, rangy home satellite, and Charley (Quizzer) Woods, Edgeworth tactician. McCook Reed, Yale leader of several seasons ago, meets up-and-coming young Henry Ackerman, of Mount Lebanon in an equally classy Heights imbroglio.

Chairman Frank S. Smith of the tourney committee has announced that all preliminary details of the West Penn classic have been arranged. Temporary stands seating 400 persons have been installed at Stanton Heights—an exceedingly popular innovation—and prospects for an unusually successful racquet gathering are bright, indeed. Prospective entrants in women's singles and in men's, womens, and mixed doubles may file names with the chairman at the Stanton Heights Golf Club, at Churchill 1439, or at Atlantic 2800 till 5 p. m. on Monday.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE MOST GIGANTIC PAINTING EVER MADE—The picture, 70 feet high and 40 feet wide, the largest ever painted, was the work of Hokusai, the Japanese painter. It was done at Yedo in 1817 on the occasion of the Temple Festival on the fourteenth day of the fourth month. The gigantic figure of Dharma was painted with enormous brushes dipped in veritable casks of India ink. The work is on such a scale that the design could be seen only by those who mounted with ladders to the Temple roof. This picture brought Hokusai great fame and the favors of the Shogun Iyenasi, but, when he died, in 1849, at the age of 89 years, leaving behind him more than 30,000 paintings and drawings, in accordance with his last wish, his tomb was inscribed Gwakioyen Manjing Haka (TOMB OF MANJI, THE OLD DRAWING FOOL). JAILING THE RAINDROPS—Emperor Shirakawa ruled Japan from 1073-1129. In the last year of his reign, violent rainfall caused the River Kammo to rise and to devastate the countryside by a disastrous inundation. To cope with the flood, the Emperor ordered a pailful of rainwater placed under arrest by way of chastisement. It does not seem as if the Emperor's stern measures had any salutary effect upon the fractious rain. History records the Emperor's dying words: "There were only three things that did not obey me, the waters of the Kammo River, the dice in backgammon, and the Buddhist priests." THE PASS KEY TO PARADISE—"Om Mani Padme Hum" are the first words taught to babes in Tibet. It is the most frequently uttered sentence in the country, and is the last prayer of the dying. An all-compelling, irresistible talisman and password to paradise, it is carved endlessly upon rocks and walls and inscribed upon the prayer wheels with which people pray without opening their mouths.

TOMORROW—THE CARVED GIANT BUDDHA.

14 TO START IN DERBY

CHICAGO, June 18.—(AP.)—The $50,000 American Derby will be run at Washington Park today with Boatswain, three-year-old son of Man O'War and winner of the Withers Stakes at Belmont Park, the ruling choice to capture the twenty-fourth running of the fixture.

The event, first run in 1874, has attracted an overnight field representing the best 3-year-olds left in training.

Boatswain, the entry of Walter M. Jeffords, of New York, was installed as favorite at odds of 3 to 1. Stepenfetchit, the Mrs. John Hay Whitney color-bearer, another invader from New York, third in the Kentucky Derby, was second choice at 4 to 1, with Yonkel, owned by Abe Bartelstein, ranking third choice along with Osculator.

State Horseshoe Tourney Under Way

The state horseshoe pitching championship got under way this morning on the courts of the Baltimore and Ohio Athletic Association, 5024 Second avenue.

Among the out-of-town entries were Shorty Fazenbaker, of Everson, defending champion; Melvin George, of Grove City, and Freeman Frazee, of Washington, the West Penn champion.

MAJOR NINES UPSET DOPE

Associated Press.

With the season fast approaching the halfway mark, it appears the country's baseball experts should be permitted another guess on the outcome of the 1932 major league races. Thus far they have taken a terrific trimming.

Sixty-eight of them, casting their ballots before the campaign began, gave a majority in favor of the St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Athletics to repeat in the National and American Leagues respectively, and pretty well overlooked such teams as the Chicago Cubs and Boston Braves.

Only three American and two National League teams have settled into the groove assigned them.

The Cubs, holding tenaciously to the National League top, probably have provided the biggest upset. The Braves, in second place, are four notches above the spot given them in pre-season calculations, while the Giants, picked by 15 to win, have failed to reach the first division. The Cards are running fourth.

Unless they suffer a reversal of form soon, the Yankees threaten to make a runaway in the American League. But it will occasion no great surprise if they win.

The remainder of the junior circuit is running fairly true to form, with Cleveland, Detroit and St. Louis exactly where they were placed by the poll, but the Chicago White Sox have done better than anticipated in clinging to seventh place.

BOSTON, June 18.—The hotel-weary Pirates were straining at the leash today, the whole Buccaneer troupe, including Manager George Gibson, eager to forsake the lobby for the diamond. Rained out of a scheduled doubleheader with the Braves yesterday, the Pittsburgh athletes were in danger of losing their physical trim, inasmuch as they have experienced enforced idleness in five of the last six days. Another attempt to stage a dual bill will be made at Braves Field this afternoon.

The hazard of over-eating has crept into the Pittsburgh circle to such an extent that Manager Gibson yesterday called a special meeting of his players in order to warn them of this peril. Gibby knows through his long association with the National League that Boston is one city where the unwise boy will often overfeed. The Hub is noted for its hospitality and while a healthy youth can get around a lot of food when he is playing regularly he is apt to make a show of himself when he is idle. So Gibson called a session to put his players, especially the kids, on their guard. Light eating, he emphasized, is the antidote for inactivity.

SWETONIC TO HURL

Gibson this morning stated he would stand by his slab selections. Hence, Steve Swetonic and Remy Kremer will be the hurlers chosen to face the Boston batters. Bill McKechnie, the home boss, has four flingers ready. He says he will choose them from among Brown, Seibold, Betts and Zachary. The latter is the only southpaw of the quartet.

The three postponed games at the Hub will result in three double bills. One of the contests will make up today's dual scrap, the other two having been moved back to the second and third visits of the Pirates to Boston.

Even if the doubleheader of today is reeled off, the Pirates will return home with only 12 battles staged in the East and to reach that number they must play all four games slated for Brooklyn. When they left Pittsburgh about 10 days ago they faced 17 battles, but the wet weather had interfered in a forceful manner.

MEET DODGERS NEXT

The Freebooters will try to get out of Boston at the close of the second game of this afternoon. A New York-bound train leaves the Hub about 6 o'clock and in the event of no delays or extra innings, the connection probably will be made. The series with the Dodgers is due to get under way in the Flatbush tomorrow.

The Pirates will be in New York four days and thus will be able to attend the Sharkey-Schmeling fight on Long Island in case they care to. The series with Max Carey's club will come to an end Wednesday. The same evening will see the Pittsburghers headed homeward, but they will enjoy an open date on Thursday, the Reds to cross bats with them on Friday and Saturday. The Saturday card will bring the first doubleheader of the season at Forbes Field.

DETROIT, June 18.—Well, the Red Sox have torn a loose leaf right out of the politician's notebook. The Boston Club realizes you can't lick somebody with a lot of nobodies, so they've traded a flock of men. MacFayden went to the Yankees, but in his first few starts, he was still pitching like a Red Sox.

If they're going to rebuild the Boston team, they will have to start at the ground floor and then dig down a couple of stories to find 'em.

The Chicago White Sox also recently had a trading session that looked like a bust day in the 1929 market. But, so far as I can see, the only one that benefited from all the trading was the guy that got the commissions.

TITLE GO REFEREE ON SPOT

PRICES SLICED IN EFFORT TO AVOID FLOP

NEW YORK, June 18.—(AP.)—Storm signals can be hoisted for the benefit of the man who referees the 15-round heavyweight championship bout between Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey next Tuesday night.

Challenger Jack has an embarrassing habit of putting referees "on the spot" in almost all his crucial engagements. Drama, comic and otherwise, follows the Boston Sailor wherever he goes. In fact, he manufactures it in wholesale quantities.

Recall a few of his more important bouts. There was that match with Jack Dempsey when Sharkey turned his head long enough to claim a foul and long enough for Dempsey to put over a knockout punch; the match with Phil Scott in the South, in which the Briton was counted out while claiming he had been hit low.

SHARKEY SHEDS TEARS

Then there was that famous battle with Jack Delaney when the rusted "Rapier of the North" went down and out with one punch while a hysterical Sharkey wept tears of excitement in one corner of the ring; the bout with the huge Italian, Primo Carnera, in which Sharkey floored Primo with one punch and then tried to jump out of the ring when the referee refused to heed his demand that Primo be disqualified for going down a second time without being hit.

And finally there was his first match with Schmeling, two years ago, when he fouled the German into the heavyweight title after giving him a beating for nearly four rounds.

There will be no winning on a foul Tuesday for the New York State Athletic Commission does not permit a fight to be stopped for that reason but the referee, whoever he may be, will need to keep his wits about him.

SEAT PRICES SLASHED

Faced with the possibility of a tremendous financial flop, the Garden acted yesterday to avert complete disaster. Drastic reductions in whole sections of high-priced seats in the new Garden bowl on Long Island increased the number of $2 and $5 ducats to about 50,000. Only 17,000 seats of the grand total of 77,000 were left in the top brackets. This revision of prices meant that a gross of $500,000 was the best the Garden could realize even should the fight be a sellout. Prospects are for a gate of only about half that amount.

Both fighters were idle at their fight camps at Orangeburg and Kingston yesterday and both were given a clean bill of health by physicians who examined them on behalf of the State Athletic Commission.

Foursome Teeing Off in Field Club Play

MR. AND MRS. WALKER AND MR. AND MRS. STARR IN CHARITY MIXED FOURSOME EVENT

Group of players competing in the Family-Help-Family mixed foursome tournament staged yesterday at the Pittsburgh Field Club. Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture shows fine panorama view of the course looking from the first tee.

STARS ATTACK A. M. A. MARKS

By JESS CARVER

Existing records are expected to put in a comparatively easy time today as stars of the tri-state area match strides and class in the annual senior A. M. A. track and field championship meet in the Pitt Stadium. In only three events does it appear even likely that new standards will be set, the class of the competition being what it is.

Woody Harris, Pitt's Negro sprinter, will set sail for a new mark in the 220-yard dash; Everett Utterback, former Pitt star, may crack A. E. Rose's old record in the broad jump, and Joe Beggs, of Geneva, the best javelin tosser in the section, has a chance to crack Len Friedman's 198-foot 8-inch distance in the javelin. Harris will have to clip 21.6 in the furlong, which he is capable of doing, and Utterback must beat 23 feet 8 inches.

ROY TO COMPETE

Only one record holder will be on hand to defend his laurels, he being Rob Roy, of Pitt, who holds the A. M. A. mark of 1:58.4 in the half-mile. Roy's form this spring has not been anything to write home about, and he is by no means the favorite to finish first, much less crack his own record, in the event.

There are outstanding favorites in each event, which makes the situation perfect for any ambitious dark horses who may wish to crash through. Harris is an odds-on choice in both sprints; Len Monheim, of Pitt, the favorite in the quarter-mile; Jim Watkins, also of Pitt, in the mile; Bill Keller in the 880; Tom Coulter in the three hurdle events; Howard Spencer in the high jump; Beggs in the javelin; Jim MacMurdo in both the shot and discus; Utterback in the broad jump, and Frank Cerny in the six-mile run.

STARS GO WEST

First and second place winners today will be eligible to compete in the Olympic quarter-final meet in Cincinnati next week. Harris, MacMurdo and Keller, of Pitt, however, and Coulter, of Tech, will entrain tomorrow for California, where they'll represent their schools in the annual I. C. A. A. A. A. meet at Berkeley July 1 and 2.

Other competitors from the district will include Gordy Fraser, of West Virginia, a nifty sprinter, and Pete Zeremba, of New York University, a resident of Aliquippa, who will be one of the Violet's weight men on the Coast.

Following are the present A. M. A. marks which will be under fire today and their possessors

100-yard dash—Pete Bowen, Henry Schnellbach, 9.8 seconds.
220-yard dash—Henry Schnellbach, 21.6 seconds.
440-yard dash—Pete Bowen, 47.8 seconds.
880-yard run—Rob Roy, 1:58.4.
Mile run—George Ashton, 4:26.
Six-mile run—Charles W. Kirsch, 33:9.4.
Mile walk—George Young, 7:14.6.
120-yard high hurdles—C. Campbell, 14.8.
220-yard low hurdles—William Latham, 24.8.
Broad jump—A. E. Rose, 23 feet 8 inches.
High jump—Bill Robusch, 6 feet 5 inches.
Discus—Gibby Welch, 14? feet 5 inches.
Javelin—Len Friedman, 198 feet 8 inches.
Pole vault—Vic Packard, 13 feet 7¼ inches.
16-lb. shotput—John Valenti, 44 feet 1 inch.

Mrs. Jessup Keeps Deleware Net Title

WILMINGTON, Del., June 18.—(AP.)—Rain halted play in the men's singles division of the Delaware State tennis championships yesterday soon after Mrs. John B. Jessup, of Wilmington, fourth national ranking star, had retained the women's singles crown by defeating Anne Townsend, of Philadelphia, No. 2 ranking player. The score was 6-1, 6-2.

Clifford Sutter, of Tulane, led Dave Jones, of Columbia University, when rain interrupted their semi-final match. Sutter won the first set, 6-2, dropped the second, 4-6, and led, 3-2, in the third.

OHIOANS FOES OF CRAWFORDS

Substituting for the Jamestown Spider Webs, the Cleveland club of the East-West League will meet the Pittsburgh Crawfords in a doubleheader at Greenlee Field this afternoon. The first game will be called at 3 o'clock. The substitution became necessary when players of the Jamestown team were injured in an automobile smash yesterday. The engagement marks the inauguration of hostilities between the Cleveland club and the Crawfords.

At Dormont, the City League champions will clash with Curley Semler's Geislers. The presence of the McKees Rocks aggregation should draw a good crowd for Falconer's club. This game will be called at 6 o'clock.

Tomorrow the fans will see one of the best doubleheaders of the season at Greenlee Field, with the Coleman Home for Negro boys getting the proceeds. The Dormont and Book teams, of the City League, will clash in the first game and the winner will meet the Crawfords in the second game.

The Homestead Grays and the Crawfords resumed their series at Greenlee Field last evening, with the Grays finishing on the long end of a 4-to-2 score. The Crawfords got away to a 2-0 lead in the first two innings, but the Grays came back with three in the fourth and added another in the sixth.

Tie games resulted in the City League, the North Siders holding Dormont even, 3-3, and the Geislers and J. L. Thomas nines played a 2-to-2 draw.

In the West Penn League the Martins upset the McKnights, 6 to 4.

The Washington Eagles clash with the Carrick Eagles at Carrick Park tomorrow in a feature sandlot attraction.

S. HILLS PAIR GOLF VICTORS

By TOM BIRKS

A South Hills duo, Mrs. Boggs and R. C. Davidson, led the field in the first division in the mixed doubles tournament at the Pittsburgh Field Club yesterday, staged for the benefit of the Family-Help-Family fund. The South Hills pair took down both the low gross and low net awards with a card of 86-9—77.

In the second division, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Miller, Jr., of Stanton Heights, led with 95-20—75, and in the third flight, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Lockhart, of the Field Club, finished in front with 102-22—80. The leaders in each division follow:

The first caddie tournament of the season at the Bob-O-Link Country Club was held yesterday. Twenty-eight caddies competed in the 18-hole medal-play affair, under handicap. Louis Smith, with a 63-4—59; Johnny Straub, with 73-12—61, and Ray Pruski, with 79-16—63, won the trophies.

There will be a pro-amateur tournament at Uniontown on Monday, and Horace Brand, the professional at the club, states that a large entry is expected.

ALLEGHENY DOG SHOW OPENS

More than 500 dogs are competing in the show which opened this morning at the Allegheny Country Club, Sewickley Heights. SALA, WILSON WIN; WEST STOPPED

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

The best boxing show of the outdoor season here so far was staged before one of the smallest crowds at Hickey Park, Millvale, last night.

Local talent made up the card and fought with typical earnestness to put to shame the hippodroming efforts of some of the highly-paid importations of recent shows at the larger clubs, where the prices are higher.

Jackie Wilson

There never has been a more vicious battle in a local arena than Lee Sala, of Donora, and Anson Green, Homested Negro, middleweights, waged in the main bout of eight rounds for the right to oppose Tommy Freeman, former welterweight champion, in the windup of next week's Millvale card. They battled hammer and tongs over the entire route, with both being staggered by blows time after time only to rally and come back fighting. At the finish, Sala won the decision, repeating a triumph of two weeks before in a shorter bout in the same arena.

McVEY KAYOS WEST

The show was thrills from start to finish, beginning with a stunning upset in the form of a clean-cut knockout defeat of Tiger Joe West by Sunny Jim McVey, who staggered his man in the opening round and dropped him for two counts of nine in the third before he finally knocked him over the lower rope, where he was counted out with his head drooping over the press table.

Jackie Wilson, flashy Homewood Negro featherweight, bested Johnny Cataline, of Oakland, in the semi-final, another ding-dong battle, with the winner earning a bout with Chico Cisneros, of Cleveland, on next week's bill. Frank Novak, North Side heavyweight, outpunched Jack Kearns, of Ripley, W. Va., in the second eight-rounder, a slugfest all of the way.

Joe Zivic, brother of Jack, Pete, Fritzie and Eddie Zivic, all boxers, made his debut as a judge, working with Jock Simco, and they scored all of the bouts to the satisfaction of the fans. Jack Henderson was the referee.

Between Rounds

Kid Chocolate will arrive in town tomorrow for his bout with Johnny Farr, of Cleveland, at the Meyers Bowl, Monday night. Pinky Kaufman, of New York, who meets Jimmy Belmont in a 10-round bout following the windup, will accompany him.

Francis Flynn, former successful local boxing promoter and gymnasium proprietor, has opened a billiard emporium in the same building in which he had his gym, in Sixth street, with Sammy Goldstein, the billiardist, as his partner, and expects to make the place a headquarters for followers of sports.

SEXTON, BOWEN MEET STARS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 18.—(AP.)—Leo J. Sexton, the New York A. C.'s mighty shotputter, was able to make only one perfect toss yesterday at the Harvard Stadium, but it went 52 feet 8⅝ inches for a new world record. It was the only exceptional performance in the long opening program of the American Olympic semi-final track and field meet.

Only one final was run off on the drenched track during the afternoon. Paul Rekers, one of Sexton's teammates and the intercollegiate indoor two-mile champion when he was at Penn State, put on a terrific closing sprint to overtake Louis Gregory, of the Millrose A. A., national six-mile titlist, in the home stretch of the 5,000 meters run. He had an eight-yard lead when he broke the tape in 1 minute 12.6 seconds.

R. F. (Pete) Bowen, of the New York A. C., former Pitt star, was the only 400-meters competitor to measure up to Olympic caliber, taking his heat in 48.6 seconds with all of the other first place trial winners taking 49 or more.

Polo Game, Horse Show at Swissvale

The Swissvale American Legion and the Swissvale Relief Association will be the beneficiaries in the polo game and horse show to be staged this afternoon at the Dickson Athletic Field, Swissvale. The polo game brings together the South Park trio and the 107th Field Artillery team.

A parade through the town will precede the athletic program at Dickson Field. The program gets under way at 2 o'clock.

BOUT AGAIN POSTPONED

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- By SALLY MARTIN

People Should Be Ready for Future Before Marrying

Can they live on love?

He doesn't want to try. He wants to wait until they've both finished their education; until he can get a job and offer her a home outside his parents' house. But she—

"If you really loved me, you wouldn't be willing to wait!" she wails. And so the riot rages.

Which side are you taking? Do you believe in using a little common caution even in romance, or would you, too, prefer to rush to the altar regardless?

I'm giving my opinion. Then you give yours.

HAD BAD LUCK

"Dear Miss Martin—

"I have known a girl for several years, and just lately we discovered we loved each other.

"I am deeply interested in the art of designing, and have studied to become a designer. Eight months ago I gave up a job that assured me a small but living wage to try my luck at breaking into the designing profession.

"My luck was bad, and now I find myself dependent on my family for the necessities of life, due to the fact that I haven't been able to find another job.

"I am 21. The girl is 17.

"She is studying to become a journalist, but now she wants to give up her studies so that we can get married. I have attempted in vain to get her to give this idea up; to persuade her that we are in no position to get married. But she seems to think we can live on love—if my family furnishes the board and lodging.

PREFERS TO WAIT

"She says that I could find work, some kind at least, if I looked for it. But I know from experience that I can't, so I'm forced to disagree with her on this. I have looked, long and diligently, and there just ain't no such animal for the present.

"I realize now, too, that I do not know enough about designing to make my living at that, and I have tried to get any kind of work at all, but it is no go.

"My argument is that she should keep on with her studies, and we should wait until I am in a position to support a wife before we marry, but my argument makes no impression on her.

"I am sure I am right, and I feel that if you would advise me your word may carry more weight with her than mine seems to. I feel that we have no right to marry under such circumstances, but my protests seem futile.

"What shall I do? Shall I go ahead as she wants me to, or insist on waiting?

"BEWILDERED YOUTH."

Shall you marry on nothing at all and trust to the ravens to feed you—or maybe a long-suffering family?

NOT READY TO MARRY

Certainly not, son. You are right in backing down on any such foolish and unfair proposition, and if this girl were a little less childish, or had done any serious thinking on the subject she wouldn't need you or me to tell her that she is wrong.

Marriage is a serious step, and people have no right to go into it until they're ready and willing and able to stand on their own feet.

So don't let her rush you against your own wise judgment. The thing for her to do is to stop and use a little common sense, and to keep on with her studies until things open up. And you can tell her I said so.

She may need that education some day, if you do marry and something should happen to you. If she has the right kind of stuff in her, she might well pitch in and use it to help you get your start some day.

But as for marrying now—the answer is no.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Attack Versus Defense

Non-fitting hands—that is, hands which do not provide easy means of communication from one hand to the other—frequently afford interesting problems in both attacking and defensive play in order that the maximum number of tricks available may be realized.

The recent Atlantic City Pair Championship event, in which a large number of leading players from the East participated, had one hand that furnished many heartaches and was played at various contracts. One of the best results on it was obtained by the North and South pair where the bidding was as shown below:

West—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

♠64
♡8
◇Q10985
♣AKQJ10

♠AJ52
♡KJ964
◇A42
♣8

North
West East
South

♠K87

◇76
♣9765432

♠Q1093
♡AQ10532
◇KJ3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
	1♡	2♣ (1)	Pass
2NT (2)	Pass	3◇	Pass
3NT (3)	Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) With such a strong honor holding, North's Overcall of two clubs is to be preferred to showing two diamonds.

(2) South's holding suggests the misfit of the hands. He is void of the suit bid by his partner and holds six cards in the suit named by the Opening bidder. While the hand appears dangerous, notrump seems the safest eventual declaration.

(3) When partner shows a second suit, South is confirmed in his opinion that notrump offers the greatest chance with the hand.

The deuce of spades was opened and won by East with the King, and a heart returned, which was won by West with the 9. The West player then elected to throw the burden of leading to the Declarer by leading a club. Already South had an accurate count on 10 of the cards held by West. The bid of hearts disclosed a five-card suit. In view of South's holdings, the lead of the deuce of spades indicated his fourth best, and the club lead showed that West had no more than three cards in the minor suits remaining, one of which must be the Ace of diamonds to justify the Opening bid. A game of notrump appeared easy to South if West held only two diamonds. A second round of clubs was led to learn his distribution, and South then realized that game could only be made by the most accurate play. Since West held two cards to the Ace, the diamond suit in the Dummy might be shut out. South, therefore led all the clubs from the Dummy, with the thought of exerting pressure on the West hand. If West made the mistake of parting with the diamond, the road to game would be easy.

South first discarded a spade, and West dropped a heart. On the second round South discarded a heart ,and West did also. When the club suit was run, South had in his hand the spade Queen-Ten, the lone Ace of hearts and his original holding of three diamonds. West had retained the Ace and Knave of spades, the lone King of hearts and three diamonds, having been compelled to blank the heart, because to discard a spade would have made it easy for South to establish a trick in that suit, and two guards must be retained to the diamond Ace in order to prevent the run of the suit to Dummy. South now won two rounds of diamonds, the last being taken in the closed hand. The Ace of hearts was then laid down, and West was thrown in with the diamond and compelled to concede the game-going trick in spades to the Declarer. West's defense was extremely fine, but fortunately for South the distribution of the West hand was made clear early in the play.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED
Mrs. Culbertson will be glad to answer any specific question on bidding or play sent in by readers. Address her in care of this newspaper, inclosing a two-cent stamped self-addressed envelope.

TODAY'S QUESTION

South is Dealer. Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	1♠	Pass
2♠	Pass	4♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

What should East lead, holding:

♠983 ♡93 ◇KJ86 ♣A842

Answer: Heart 9. The lead of a doubleton (or singleton) in a suit bid by the left-hand opponent, but denied by the right-hand opponent, is preferable to a lead from a ten-ace position.

The Season for It

At this time when the summer fruits are just beginning to appear in market it might be well to remind the housewife that a little pure glycerine will remove fruit stains from table linen. Apply before sending to the laundry and the linen will come back beautifully white.

'WHAT IS SO RARE?—' -:-

Drawn by
Nell Brinkley

"What is so rare as a day in June?
Then, if ever, come perfect days,
When Heaven tries the Earth if it be in tune,
And over it softly her warm ear lays."

Do you remember, in high school, being made to "scan" that pretty rhyme? And how little it meant to you then, who missed its very essence in your anxiety to be out in that very JUNE DAY! Poetry wearies most humans when they are very young. They live a certain measure of it, and do not know it! When we are older we love the poetry that our everyday life misses, we live some of it, too—and KNOW it. When we do.

The older we grow the more wonderful is the world, I think. The more poignant grows its greens, its blues, its waters, its skies, its smell of earth and flower. The more we see to love in it. The more precious it becomes.

When we are children we revel in it as an animal. When we are not any longer children we revel in it as a soul—and an animal, too.

June is now. June is a fresh month, before the world grows warm and dusty. The green is thin, the blue is frail. Morning and night the air is a-clamor with the varied and amusing unfinished music of bird song.

And humanity in June, enjoying its world, is as varied, as amusing and as unfinished as that! It has a funny and a good time.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

Church Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Just where should the mother of the groom sit in the church at the wedding service . . . and where should the mother of the bride sit?

It seems to me that the mother of the groom sits to the left of the center aisle as you enter, and the bride's mother to the right as you enter. Is this correct?

2. The groom's mother enters the church before the mother of the bride, does she not?

Please answer this in your column.

FAITHFUL READER.

1. No . . . just the reverse. The mother of the bride sits to the LEFT of the center aisle as the processional enters, and the mother of the groom sits on the RIGHT of this aisle.

You will, I am sure, be able to remember about this if you think about the reason. You see the bride's parents are the hosts of the occasion, and the groom's parents are the guests of honor of the occasion. Therefore, the groom's parents, the other members of his family, and his friends, sit on the RIGHT, the side always assigned to the guest or guests of honor. The host sits on the left.

2. Yes. If they time it as they should, the groom's mother and father arrive at the church about five or four minutes before the hour set for the ceremony. The groom's mother takes the usher's arm, and the groom's father walks with them, but a step or two behind them. Then the mother of the bride arrives, usually about one or two minutes before the hour set. She makes her triumphal entrance with the head usher, alone, of course, since her husband will arrive with their daughter, in the processional. After the mother of the bride is seated, no other guests are seated. The door at the back of the church is closed, and the processional is formed. Late guests, arriving after the bride's mother, either stand at the rear of the church or take their places in the gallery.

Inappropriate

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to be a bridesmaid at a wedding soon and I am the only attendant and have only met the bride once, would it be correct to give a shower? C. M.

Since you do not know the bride well, it would not be appropriate for you to give a shower for her.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Avoid Overstrain to Prevent Hardening of Arteries

Dr. Copeland

Arteriosclerosis is the medical term for a condition commonly known as hardening of the arteries. In this affliction, the arteries lose their normal elasticity and become brittle, due to certain changes in the artery walls.

These blood vessels, often called "pipe lines," contain within their walls elastic tissue and muscular tissue. When the heart beats, blood is forced into the arteries. The blood pressure, or force necessary to maintain a constant flow of blood, is made possible by the action of the elastic tissues within the blood vessel walls.

In arteriosclerosis the elasticity is diminished or lost. Instead of healthy muscular and elastic tissue, the pipe lines are brittle and rigid, due to deposits of lime which cause the lining of the arteries to become rough and irregular.

When these changes occur, the pipe lines no longer assist in the circulation of the blood. Instead, the hardened arteries serve to retard the normal flow of blood, and thus more work is thrown upon the heart, causing an increase in the blood pressure. Also, insufficient blood is carried to certain parts of the body, causing discomfort and pain.

There are three types of arteriosclerosis, and the most common type is due to old age. It is well known that as we grow older our blood vessels undergo certain changes. Some degree of hardening of the arteries is present in most old people, and some persons grow old more quickly than others.

Hardening of the arteries is now believed to depend on how we live, rather than how long we live. Overstrain of any sort, continued for a long time, is the chief factor in causing hardening of the arteries, while overeating, overexercise, or lack of sufficient exercise will produce definite changes in the arteries which lead to hardening.

Arteriosclerosis may be due to infection from certain infectious diseases, such as typhoid fever, pneumonia and tuberculosis, and it is believed by some authorities that focal infections found in diseased tonsils, infected teeth, sinuses, gall-bladder or appendix, are factors in causing hardening of the arteries. In these cases it is believed that the trouble is caused by the liberation of poisons which result from the infection.

The third type of arteriosclerosis accompanies or follows high blood pressure, not all cases of high blood pressure end in hardening of the arteries, although many cases show signs of it. Certainly high blood pressure if neglected is likely to result in hardening of the arteries.

Persons with arteriosclerosis should not indulge in strenuous exercise. Rest and relaxation are essential for them. The diet should be simple. Overeating is dangerous. Salt, peppers, spices and condiments should be avoided and the diet should contain a minimum amount of meat. A daily afternoon nap is advisable, and whenever possible it is wise to stay outdoors in the sunlight and fresh air.

Children Are Human Beings

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

The more conscientious a parent is, sometimes, the less he treats a child as another human being, but rather as a problem to be scowled over and worked at until it becomes a burden instead of the joy it should be.

Now clean face and hands, and wiping of feet before entering the kitchen, are proper things to impress upon a child, but once in a while there comes a time when, if the conscientious mother considers these instead of the child's emotional status at the moment, she is crushing something in him that she can never revive. The moral is to take time out, when the psychological moment arrives to be just another human being.

One mother had just entered the kitchen, where her maid, Katy, had just finished using the scrubbing pail, when in slammed her young son, face radiant and voice high and loud in exultation.

"Mother, I made a home run! Gosh, mother—"

"Jimmie! All that mud on Katy's nice clean floor! Go out and wipe your feet! And such a looking face! Straight to the bathroom and get cleaned up before your father gets home!"

From the rug, where feet were being assiduously scraped, "A home run!" the excited voice went on. "All the bases was full——"

"Were full!" mother corrected, as she watched the foot-wiping process.

"Were full; and I almost didn't make it, but I slid just like I saw—"

"Bathroom!" Said Mother sternly. "I'll talk to you when you are clean."

But somehow all Jimmie's glory and thrill had been washed away, along with the dirt he'd accumulated sliding for a home run. He was praised for looking like a little gentleman at the dinner table, but when Mother said 'Our son made a homerun today. Tell Dad about it," Jimmy buried his face in his plate and grunted, "Aw, it wasn't anything."

Mother shook her head. The boy was getting moody and sullen, and she couldn't quite understand it.

Later Jimmy edged shyly into the kitchen. "I guess I mussed up your floor, didn't I?" And Katy of the buxom breast and huge arms, smiled widely at him. "Pshaw! What's a bit of clean dirt, after a homerun! I'm after bein' proud of yuh, Master Jimmie."

I hope Katy will marry and have dozens of children, because to her they are human; their triumphs are more important than a bit of dirt. Yes, Katy will bear men-children who will go out and do things, and be happy in the doing.

Household Hints

Sunshine is destructive to mirrors and often causes them to have a milky appearance which can never be removed. In arranging your room be careful to place the mirror so it will not receive the direct rays of the sun.

A good way to fold back the spread at night to prevent it from wrinkling is to begin at the top of the spread, folding it half toward the foot. Then fold from each side toward the center, making a triangle with its base toward the foot of the bed. Fold the point over the footboard. This method will not only prevent wrinkles, but will keep the spread off the floor.

Lynn Thrilled by Luxurious Surroundings of New Friend's Penthouse

CHAPTER X.

Dwight took out a notebook and a gold pencil. "I'll send a car," he offered, "about 7:30. We'll dine at 8. What's your address?"

She gave him the address.

He asked, lingering a moment: "You're in the telephone book?"

"Yes, but under 'Le Grande.' I live with another girl," she said. "The phone is listed in her name."

He raised an eyebrow. "Le Grande—is it possible?"

Lynn laughed. "Smith, really. She's a model here in the building."

He nodded, smiled again, said, "Friday, then," and departed.

"Holy cat!" breathed Miss Marple at Lynn's elbow. "Who's the grand duke?"

"You're sure stepping out," was Jennie's only comment as Lynn told her at luncheon. "What'll you wear?"

"There's the black net——"

"Too sophisticated."

"There's the cherry satin, but that's pretty well worn out."

"Look here," suggested Jennie, "there's a little dress—it's dusky pink lace, stiffened, with wide half sleeves and a dofunny of French blue at the high waist. It's been taken off the line. It's a fourteen. I can get it for you. It will set you back sixty-nine-fifty, but it's worth it. It sells for a hundred and ten, retail."

"Jennie, it sounds marvelous!" Lynn looked at her friend, gray eyes shining. "But—I shouldn't."

"Sure you should. You've got to dress for the occasion. This Scarletina, or whatever his name is, may be as contagious as he sounds; he may offer you a castle in Florence and a gondola in Venice. He gets about a thousand a yip, I guess. Hop to it; you're only young once. I'll ask Madame if I can bring the dress home tonight."

"All right," agreed Lynn. After all, she needed another evening dress, she excused her extravagance—and she had not spent her father's Christmas check.

JENNIE GETS DRESS

Jennie went upstairs after luncheon and attacked Madame on the subject of the dusky pink. Madame was agreeable; she liked Jennie.

Madame was tiny, dark, with a startling intelligent face. She designed her own frocks, all of them, bought the materials, oversaw workrooms and showrooms. She was the first of the wholesalers to move into the Times Square district.

Jennie found the frock, boxed it and put it away. Business was slow that day, but, standing at the dressing-room door behind the drapes, she heard Sam Pearl, the salesman, expostulating with a lone buyer who had wandered in and demanded to see models at thirty-nine-fifty.

"Thirty-nine-fifty! Impossible!" cried Mr. Pearl. "Madame never expresses herself under sixty-nine-fifty!"

Crushed, the buyer oozed through the doors and Mr. Pearl, with a shrug, flitted to the nearest mirror and ran a comb through his permanent. Jennie, in the doorway, giggled. He turned at the sound but she had vanished.

"I must tell that one to Lynn," thought Jennie.

FLOWERS FROM DWIGHT

She did. And Lynn told it to Sarah and Dwight on Friday night. Scarletti was late. The car had called first for Lynn and then for Sarah. There were two square boxes in the car, marked with Lynn's and Sarah's names.

"Look, flowers!" Lynn cried, as Sarah entered the car.

Sarah unwrapped hers. She wore black, severe, well cut; crystals at her throat and well-shaped ears. She said, "He does everything well."

"I never dreamed you knew him. Long?"

"Twenty years."

"How exciting!" said Lynn. "What's he like, really?"

The car purred down Fifth avenue. "He's a brilliant man," Sarah said. "Erratic, people call him, but he's a very good friend."

That was what Lynn had thought; she said so. She was silent, thinking it would be pleasant to have a friend, a man friend, an older man upon whose cool, impersonal strength she might lean when things became too difficult for her.

Dwight's apartment was a duplex—the penthouse on top of a lower Fifth avenue structure. The elevator shot them to the twentieth floor; they climbed a winding staircase, stood before the apartment door and were admitted by a man servant who, following the unexpectedness of most things connected with Dwight, did not look like a man servant. He looked like a prize fighter. He had been one.

LYNN COMPLIMENTED

That was the last formality, if Wilkins could be called formal. Dwight was standing in front of an Adam fireplace. Driftwood was burning in it, for looks, he explained, not because of necessity. It was a lovely spring night, with just the proper amount of chill in the air. After the exchange of greetings, Dwight took them to a bedroom up a winding stair—a bedroom opening upon a gallery of iron grille work hung with two beautiful old Spanish shawls.

"Hairpins for the growing bob!" cried Lynn, delighted. "And rouge. And powder. And Sarah, look at this atomizer of perfume."

"I like lovely things about me. You, for instance," said Dwight.

She pressed the plunger, like a child, and was immediately enveloped in a frail, faint, bewitching scent.

"Now I've done it!" she said, abashed.

Sarah regarding herself briefly in the mirror, said, "That's what it's there for." She added, "You look lovely, Lynn."

She did. Dusky pink lace stiffened in little tiers. She looked like a rose-quartz pagoda, or so Dwight told her when he saw her. Black hair, close-waved, a satin cap, the widow's peak a dark arrow on her forehead. Gray eyes, black-lashed, clear color, olive skin, red lips, smooth shoulders rising from the tight bodice, the 1860 neckline of the bertha. And at her slim waist the waxen ivory of the gardenias thrust through the twist of French-blue ribbon.

They had cocktails in the long, many-windowed room. Scarletti arrived, breathless, before the second round. He was a dark, fat man with an enormous appetite and a gift of Homeric laughter.

They dined in a room which was glass on three sides. A perfect dinner, mellow wines and good talk. Then they had coffee in the living room and Dwight took Lynn into a lovely library and showed her his collection of Japanese prints, of etchings, of old books in fine bindings.

"You like things of this sort?" he asked.

"Yes. I don't know much about them," she confessed.

"Neither do I, but I like lovely things about me." He smiled at her and added, "You, for instance. You don't mind my saying that? You've a charming frock, but I'm repeating myself."

She said, "That's the advantage of having a friend who is a model."

Sarah spoke in the doorway. "Can't you persuade Scarletti to sing for us, David?"

"I'll try. I am still complimenting our little friend on her gown."

"Jennie bought it for me," Lynn told Sarah.

Synopsis

Young and pretty Lynn Harding is ambitious for a career. She is a clerk in the Seacoast Bank and Trust Company where she meets Tom Shepard, secretary to one of the bank's vice presidents. One day, Jennie Le Grande, a model for a concern in the building is taken ill and Lynn takes her home. Lynn likes Jennie in spite of her sophisticated attitude. Tom objects to Jennie. He professes his love to Lynn but she refuses to take him seriously, although she also loves him. When he gives her a diamond ring at Christmas, Lynn explains that they can't bind each other as they have their careers to make first. She wears the ring in her right hand. When Jennie's roommate leaves to be married, Lynn rejects Tom's offer of marriage. Later, Sarah Dennet, Lynn's friend and chief, introduces her to David Dwight, the noted lawyer. Twenty years ago, Sarah loved Dwight, but he gave her up to marry a wealthy girl. Attracted by Lynn, he invites her and Sarah to lunch. Tom disapproves of Lynn's friendship with Dwight, but she reminds him of their agreement—"no ties." Lynn accepts Dwight's invitation to dinner when she learns Sarah is also going.

Heart of a Wife

Chinese Patient Has Liking for Madge

"Because," Katherine said, answering my breathless "Why?" "Because, you are the one person toward whom that wounded man in there shows even a spark of liking. I am his nurse, but he only tolerates me, while Harry and Dicky are 'less than the dust beneath his chariot wheels'."

"But, Katherine," I asked, half fearfully, half curiously, "why should he prefer me to anyone else?"

She glanced at me inscrutably, and without knowing why, I felt my cheeks flushing.

"Perhaps he'll tell you some time," she said, and turning, upon that enigmatic little speech, she put her hand upon the doorknob again.

"I'll call you as soon as he wakens," she said, and going back into the room, shut the door behind her.

I stood still for a long minute, groping—groping as one does sometimes for some idea which one ought to grasp, but which tantalizingly eludes one. Then, utterly baffled, feeling powerless to understand what Katherine had meant, I went slowly back to the living room. Finding it empty, I located the men on the veranda by the spirals of cigar smoke coiling upward outside the open windows.

"He's asleep just now," I said, "but as soon as he awakens Katherine wants me to bring in the letter and show it to him, and," I added reluctantly, "she says she doesn't need either of you to help at that time."

DICKY STARTLED

"For 'need' substitute 'want,'" Mr. Underwood said. "Evidently Dicky Bird, we're getting the bum's rush, or in a more ladylike language, we're persona non grata, or Lady Fair is especially persona grata, I don't know which."

"The latter, I fancy," Dicky said shortly.

"But why?" Mr. Underwood said. "Of course we all concede the superiority of Lady Fair in pulchritude and everything else, to all other women except mein own frau; but Katherine's mighty easy on the eyes, too, and it's always conceded that a trained nurse has the edge on every other woman when it comes to gaining a patient's confidence. If this old chromo across the hall seems to want Mrs. Madge's shoulder, and that of no one else, why? I ask you; why? Does he think that somewhere, back 19 generations or so, you had a Chinese ancestress of royal family?"

There came a little sound from Dicky's throat, which was not a gasp, a grunt or an objurration, yet had something of all three in it. He made no other reply to Mr. Underwood's ridiculous remark, but there was a startled expression in his eyes which told me that something his friend had said had started some unexpected train of thought in his mind—unexpected and unwelcome as well, if I interpreted his facial expression aright; and I have had many years of practice in that particular task.

I had no time for speculation upon whatever fantastic idea my husband might have gotten into his head, for Katherine's light step sounded behind us.

WANTS MADGE TO READ

"He has awakened," she said, "much sooner than I expected. But he's perfectly fit, and you may as well come in and show him that letter now as any other time."

I rose obediently and, carrying the letter in my hand, walked with Katherine back into the sick room. She beckoned me to the bedside with her, and we both looked down at the emaciated face upon the pillow.

One could not say that that immobile face changed, but unmistakably there was a certain lightening of the eyes as they looked upon me.

"Do you feel strong enough to read a letter?" Katherine asked.

"Yes."

The monosyllable was curt but not rude; rather as if the speaker were conserving his strength. He waited for half a minute and then put a question.

"Who send me letter?"

"It is written in Chinese and it was fastened on the fence of the pasture, so we think that the men who hurt you have written it to you. There is a direction in English which asks us to give the letter to you. Shall I read that direction to you?"

"No!" The negative came with decision. "Plitty lady belong Lee Chow boss man. She read."

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

The members of the Schenley Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club held a parade today in the Oakland section in honor of the Jackie Cooper picture, "When a Feller Needs a Friend."

Led by a Boy Scout drum and bugle corps and the Komic Club Band from the Schenley Theater, the youngsters made plenty of noise before the regular meeting was called to order by Manager Harry Thomas.

After the meeting was called to order, the Schenley Band played several popular numbers which the members sang. This was followed by a stage show presented for the boys and girls by Vera Leibau. Pupils from her dancing school, many of whom are members of the Junior Komic Club, sang and danced to the delight of the members.

CLOWN CHOSEN

At the Cameraphone Theater the winner in the Komic Club contest was picked and this youngster kept the members entertained for some time with his clever tumbling and acting. This little fellow now has a regular place and duty to perform each week at the meeting.

At the Enright a motion picture of all the members was taken outside of the theater before the meeting was called to order. This picture will be shown on the screen of the Enright at the meeting next Saturday. As the members entered the theater they each received a generous dish of ice cream.

BAND PLAYS

Most of the time alloted to the meeting of the Rowland (Wilkinsburg) Chapter of the Junior Komic Club today was taken up by the members of the newly organized Komic Club Band, which held its first rehearsal Wednesday night. Those joining the Rowland chapter during the last week are Betty Scott, Paul Powers, Vincent LaPaglia, Theodore Silver, Genevieve Mack, Robert Kerr, James Nelson Hastings and Betty Louise Hastings.

If you are not a member of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Juniors Komic Club, send your name and address, name of your parents, school you attend, date and year of your birth, to the Secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be mailed to you.

Hoover Prosperity

If you like this kind of thing then this is the kind of thing you like.

The Republican national convention in solemn session has placed the seal of its approval on the administration of President Herbert Clark Hoover, whom it presents to the country as its candidate for re-election.

Last time, Mr. Hoover ran as a prophet of prosperity, and was described by his supporters as a superman in the field of management.

The President himself identified prosperity with Republican rule, and indicated that future affluence depended on a continuation of the governmental and business policies already under way.

In his keynote address before the convention at Chicago, Senator L. J. Dickinson, Republican keynoter, in referring to President Hoover said:

> "It (the party) offers this great leader with pride and with confidence. Pride in his achievements in the face of tremendous odds; confidence in the judgment of the people to keep at the helm the captain who alone has demonstrated a capacity to steer our economic ship to safe harbor.
>
> "Perhaps it was with prophetic vision that the American people elected Herbert Hoover four years ago with the greatest popular and electoral college vote any president ever received. At any rate, he had scarcely taken the oath of his office before economic storm clouds had begun to cast their sinister shadow over the nations of the world."

In the last presidential campaign, Mr. Hoover apparently agreed with Mr. Dickinson. His addresses gave the public no inkling that it was approaching the end of an epoch. The high optimism which ran through his speeches doubtless encouraged widespread fresh buying even from the high level which then prevailed.

In his speech in San Francisco on July 27, 1928, Mr. Hoover said:

> "The outlook for the world today is for the greatest era of commercial expansion in history."

In his acceptance speech (August 11, 1928), the President was lyric in his praise of Republican accomplishments.

> "We in America today," Mr. Hoover declared, "are nearer to the final triumph over poverty than ever before in the history of any land. The poorhouse is vanishing from among us. We have not yet reached the goal, but given a chance to go forward with the policies of the last eight years, and we shall soon with the help of God be within sight of the day when poverty will be banished from this nation. . . .
>
> "A general reduction in the tariff would admit a flood of goods from abroad, it would injure every home. It would fill our streets with idle workers.
>
> " . . . The object of our policies is to establish for our farmers an income equal to those of other occupations.
>
> " . . . I have endeavored in this address to present to you the policies which have made and will make for prosperity of our country. They hold the hope of final abolition of poverty."

The dismal annals of American business in the last three years indicate that Mr. Hoover not only oversold Republican policies, but also overvalued the effect of politics on business. No wonder there is so much popular disillusionment and resentment!

Mr. Hoover reiterated the alleged partnership between the G. O. P. and prosperity in his Madison Square Garden speech (October 22, 1928), in which he said:

> "We have in this short period decreased the fear of poverty, the fear of unemployment, the fear of old age; and these are fears that are the greatest calamities of human kind.
>
> "A continuation of the policies of the Republican party is fundamentally necessary to the future advancement of this progress and to the further building of this prosperity.
>
> " . . . Never in our history was the leadership in our economic life more distinguished in its abilities than today, it has grown greatly in its consciousness of public responsibility."

Mr. Hoover has long been a leading sponsor of accelerating public works as a business stabilizer in time of depression. He wrote the foreword to a report on the subject by a committee of experts in 1923. He further popularized the idea during the last political campaign, saying, for example, in a speech at St. Louis on November 2, 1928:

> "These (public) works, which will provide jobs for an army of men, should, so far as practicable, be adjusted to take up the slack of unemployment if it should occur."

Again in his Louisville address advocating extension of internal waterways on October 23, 1929, Mr. Hoover declared:

> "A nation makes no loss by devotion of some of its current income to the improvement of its estate. That is an obligation we owe to our children and grandchildren. I do not measure the future of America in terms of our lifetime. God has truly blessed us with great resources. It is our duty to make them available to our people."

Recently Mr. Hoover has definitely opposed a bond issue to finance public works, and has narrowed the stabilizing effect of public construction by urging that only self liquidating projects be considered.

Inaugurating a third year before business began to slide downward, Mr. Hoover said on March 4, 1929:

> "I have no fears for the future of our country. It is bright with hope."

Then the day after the Wall Street panic, President Hoover declared in a statement to the press on October 25, 1929:

> "The fundamental business of the country, that is, production and distribution of commodities, is on a sound and prosperous basis."

In a subsequent statement to the press on November 15, 1929, Mr. Hoover declared:

> "Any lack of confidence in the economic future or the basic strength of business in the United States is foolish."

Mr. Hoover was vastly premature in heralding the harbingers of recovery. In a statement issued on January 21,

Hard is the lot of the Little Fellow at the oars.

Round and round and round he rows in the sea of the deficit, getting nowhere, accomplishing nothing except to give his three passengers a FREE RIDE.

The husky gentlemen, taking it easy in the rear seat, represent two of the greatest industries in the country today—BOOTLEG BOOZE and CRIME, and while all other business, great and small, struggle to meet the demands of the Tax Collectors, these two worthies pay NOTHING toward the cost of maintaining the government.

Political, professional Drys add to the taxpayers' burden.

But it won't be for long.

A sensible sentiment, strong and determined, is sweeping the nation, a sentiment that demands that an end be put to the Noble Experiment that turned out to be such a costly, tragic, ignoble failure.

Political Drys will learn more about this Anti-Prohibition sentiment as time goes on.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

A Dreamer's Home

He dwells within a little house
Beside a busy road.
Where, though men hasten up and down,
None sees his true abode.

For all the roving passers-by
View shutters, roof and wall
With careful or with casual look,
Yet never know at all
The dweller there has spacious rooms,
And from their casements wide
He looks upon a splendid world
To lesser eyes denied.

He sees a world all fair and bright
With truth and tenderness,
A sphere where noble beings go
In honor's shining dress.

The passers view the little house
With pity or disdain;
They can not guess the dweller there
Sees life without a strain.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 18.—Purely personal piffle: I feel a sissie talking to an Indian. Andrew Mellon suggests having just stepped off a glacier. No celebrity has the self-effacing modesty of Helen Wills Moody. A favorite candy is old-fashioned conical-shaped chocolate drops.

Slum streets interest me more than fashionable boulevards. If I don't go to work directly after breakfast I'm sunk for the day. Until I met him, I somehow thought of Basil Woon as a Chinese. There is an ink spot on the face of my desk clock that is a startling silhouette of Mrs. Fiske.

Intimate personal correspondence is on post-cards in red ink. I enjoy plays best from the front row of the balcony. Nothing infuriates me like telephone callers asking me to guess who they are. I once found a clothes-pin in a Baked Alaska. And wear evening dress collars with enormous minstrel wings.

The only actress to whom I ever sought an introduction was Raquel Miller. People I like are often those I disliked before meeting. In particular—Maury H. B. Paul. The criticism I have enjoyed most of my writings, and I think the best, is: "It's virtue is its unashamed littleness."

Of all people whose society I have loved and lost, the one I miss most is that of Will Hogg. Texas Guinan is always under the delusion I'm mad at her. I'm never "mad" at anybody. A distinct diversion in my life vanished when the Palace performances became continuous.

Literature's most annoying figure is George Bernard Shaw. I think the country would be as well off with the Stock Exchange closing permanently. The most interesting of the wild game hunters is Frank Buck. I cannot remember ever drinking a glass of water between meals.

Every once in a while I have a sudden longing to visit Mt. Vernon. I frequently dream of getting a fish-hook caught in my ear. No dish equals dunking corn-bread in pot-likker. I'm rather tired of reading of the social activities of the Huttons.

* * *

I had a pronounced conviction the Lindbergh baby had been killed immediately after the great hue and cry went up. For no reason, whatever, I never cared to see Lunt and Fontanne. I've had three invitations to dine at the White House, but had stage fright. I never knew until last week what a costumer was. Nothing impresses me like an elevator in a private home.

* * *

I walk out on "wonder kiddies" on the stage. Just an old grouch. I have a bet the Empire Building will be filled by 1934 and read Variety from "kiver to kiver" each week. When showing visitors around I manage to pass a dozen traffic cops with whom I have a waving acquaintance. Every letter I have published in my columns has been genuine. The most interesting one was not published. Although its author begged me to.

* * *

The only high-brow dancing I ever enjoyed was that of Isadora Duncan. And I was a trifle lit. The best teller of drunk stories is James Barton. I have no bank account, and my personal belongings are limited to my clothes and a typewriter. When I need money my wife gives it to me. She has never asked me for a cent. Nor have we ever had a spat about finances.

* * *

Only two dramatic critics in New York strike me as diagnosticians. But all are entertaining. I have visited Harlem cabarets but twice. Every visitor to Europe I urged to see Antwerp has thanked me profusely. I'm afraid of women with monocles, but have no fear of spiders. The only orderly thing I do daily is cap my fountain pen. Ted Healy is my favorite of the rowdy comics. George Jean Nathan always looks as though he just woke up. I am ever at sea about the French Louis and cannot remember which one said: "Apres mois, le deluge." Also I act as though I understand all about period furniture, whereas I don't know a thing. I have never called a Pullman porter George.

* * *

Twenty years ago I was a borrower at three supposedly reputable lending societies, but which were rapacious loan sharks. Had I not engaged a reputable lawyer, I would still be paying off. The only fist fight I ever had was in Dayton, O., and—I still feel silly about it—I hit the wrong fellow. Don Marquis is the best—or was when he was columning—of all present day columnists.

* * *

I could not enjoy the movie Tarzan for wondering about the hero's clean shave and modern haircut. That sort!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Sometimes these days I get bewildered. So much suffering among the weak; so much stupidity and indifference among the strong; everything in a mess and no light ahead; where are we drifting?

Sometimes I find myself asking questions I never asked before, having doubts I never had before, feeling a bitter rebellion.

You know how it is, don't you? Probably doing the same thing yourself? Yes? And it's bad. It cuts into one's work; wrecks one's disposition; destroys one's helpfulness. But what can we do about it? How can we fight it?

It isn't that we lack gumption. If it were just hard times we could fight it, or sickness, or some big catastrophe, or even war. We've spunk enough to fight all these things. We have faced them in the past. We can face them again. But this slow, dark tide of doubt that's creeping over us—there's the jinx! How can we fight that?

I think I've found a way. It's a simple scheme, but it works for me. Perhaps it will work for you; no harm trying it, anyway. Here it is.

When I find myself "going off the deep end," I no longer try to kid myself with a lot of cheery chirps. I don't deny that things are as they are; nor do I blow up and run around trying to fix the blame, shrieking that the world is going to the dogs.

Instead, I try to face the facts—ALL of the facts, quietly, without hypocrisy or hysteria. Then, as though I were talking quietly to someone in deep trouble, I say to myself:

Yes, these things are black, and that blackness is making a coward of me. But I can't help blackness by looking for more blackness. I can only help blackness by letting in light, and the only light I can let in on this present situation is the light of my own faith.

Can I do that? Have I any reason for faith when things are in such a mess? Is there anything a reasonable person can still believe in? I THINK THERE IS!

IN THE FIRST PLACE, I CAN BELIEVE IN MYSELF.

I know myself pretty well. I know I've committed a lot of mean, stupid, selfish, cowardly acts, and yet I know I'm better than my own acts. I know there is something fine in me that can rise above my coarseness, something brave in me that can rise above my own cowardice. No matter how poor a bet I may seem to others, I know I can bet on myself—believe in myself.

AND IF I CAN BELIEVE IN MYSELF, I CAN ALSO BELIEVE IN MY FELLOWMAN.

If I'm better than I seem, why should I doubt that he is? Surely I am not the Only Reliable Human! If I'm willing to bet that I can get myself out of the messes I get myself into, why shouldn't I make the same bet on him? I will! So there are two things I can believe in, no matter what hell is happening.

I CAN BELIEVE IN MYSELF.

I CAN BELIEVE IN MY FELLOWMAN.

And if I take my eyes off the immediate scene and look back a few million years, it's a cinch I CAN ALSO BELIEVE IN LIFE

Life has come a long way, made many mistakes, pulled many a flop. Life has suffered everything, dared everything, BUT LIFE HASN'T BEEN LICKED YET!

And I am part of life. I am not just a man. The human race is not just a herd of men. WE ARE ALL PART OF A GOING CONCERN THAT HAS BEEN OPERATING SINCE THE DAWN OF TIME, AND IS STILL DOING BUSINESS AT THE SAME OLD STAND!

Three things in which I can believe, on which I can bet through the darkest hours; and then a fourth—GOD!

I believe in God. I have not seen God. I cannot prove God. But I know that there is something in me greater than my own wisdom, or the strength of my fellow man, or even the purposes of life. There is a Dream in me—there is a Vision of Beauty and Justice and Truth that persists in spite of all my bunglings, all life's fumblings.

That Dream I call God, and, whatever comes, whatever the loss or pain, even till that moment when the black tide rises so high that I shall forget all else, I WILL BELIEVE IN GOD!

Four things there are in which I can believe through all confusion—IN MYSELF, IN MY FELLOW MAN, IN LIFE AND IN GOD.

When things grow too dizzy, I sit down quietly and say this over and over to myself; and something in me grows still, and sure, and ready to face life again.

Isn't It So?

There is no worse robber than a bad book.

Saints must come to poverty if prudence be not theirs.

Some men consider an ounce of graft worth more than a pound of honesty.

Text for Today Be not wise in thine own eyes: fear the Lord, and depart from evil.—Proverbs, iii:7.

(Today's text is suggested by the Rev. G. J. Muller, pastor, Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church, North Side.)

Hoover Prosperity

1930, based on information from the Department of Labor, the President said:

> "The tide of employment has changed in the right direction."

In a statement to the press on March 7, 1930, Mr. Hoover said:

> "All evidences indicate that the worst effects of the crash upon employment will have been passed during the next sixty days, with the amelioration of seasonal unemployment, the gaining strength of other forces, and the continued co-operation of the many agencies actively co-operating with the government to restore business and to relieve distress."

Less than sixty days later, the President, in his speech before the United States Chamber of Commerce in Washington (May 1, 1930) said:

> "While the crash only took place six months ago, I am convinced we have now passed the worst, and, with continued unity of effort, we shall rapidly recover. There is one certainty in the future of a people of the resources, intelligence and character of the people of the United States—that is, prosperity."

All of this is excellent ballyhoo, but the American people have found that they cannot live on ballyhoo alone.

On June 4, 1930, the President told a group of publicists who had come to the White House to urge more vigorous measures to prevent further unemployment:

> "Gentlemen, you have come six weeks too late."

In his address before the Indiana Republican Editorial Association on June 15, 1931, Mr. Hoover said:

> "The Federal Reserve System was inadequate to prevent a large diversion of capital and bank deposits from commercial and industrial business into wasteful speculation and stock promotion. Our banking system must be organized to give greater protection to depositors against failures. We must determine whether the facilities of our security and commodity exchanges are not being used to create illegitimate speculation and intensify depressions."

Senator Carter Glass has framed a bank reform bill, embodying these recommendations, but the President has turned no hand to overcome the apathy of Congress toward the subject.

But why examine more of the record? Surely no man in or out of office has had a more consistent average of failure in predicting the course of events in the last three years.

Those who have studied the President's forecasting record will tend to take a critical attitude toward his present day predictions and claims.

As already stated in these columns in summary of the situation Mr. Hoover has exhibited a singular faculty for foretelling everything wrongly, advising everything wrongly, and doing everything wrongly.

Still if you approve that kind of a record the Republican party in convention in Chicago has provided you with an opportunity to perpetuate it.

Traitorous Folly

Bill Advocated by Congressman Collins Would Cripple Remainder of Our Military Establishment.

If the Democratic leadership of the House is well advised it will accept the War Department appropriation bill for 1933 as it passed the Senate.

Democratic and Republican Senators united in purging this measure of the jokers with which it was loaded down in the House at the instigation of its most fanatical pacifist—Congressman Collins, of Mississippi.

The Senate bill represents a cut of $80,000,000 under the estimates submitted by the department to the Director of the Budget.

It carries only $290,000,000 for military activities. This is 17 per cent less than is provided for the same purpose in this year's appropriations.

The Bureau of the Budget reduced the estimates of the department for this purpose by about $30,000,000.

The House reduced the budget estimates by $21,000,000 more.

The Senate reduced the aggregate in the House bill by $3,000,000.

In addition to these drastic reductions, the economy bill as it passed the Senate lops off another nine or ten million from the appropriations for military activities.

In other words, the Senate proposes to the House that Congress reduce appropriations for 1933 $65,000,000 below last year's appropriations for the military activities of the War Department.

The Senate bill provides for drastic economies in the maintenance of our military establishment until the emergency caused by the depression ends and the fiscal condition of the federal treasury improves.

The House bill, for which Pacifist Collins, of Mississippi, is chiefly to blame, would, if it became law, nullify the main provisions of the national defense act.

It would reverse the military policy and disrupt the system of national defense which the United States has adopted.

It would cripple what is left of our military establishment—all for the purpose of catering to the organized minority of pacifists of which Pacifist Collins, of Mississippi, is the ringleader.

Surely Speaker Garner, Congressman Rainey, Congressman Crisp and Congressman McDuffie will save the Democratic House from the traitorous folly of surrendering the Army of the United States to the sapping expedition against the national defense of which Pacifist Collins is the ringleader.

If the Democratic party is to follow the leadership of Pacifist Collins it is hardly likely that the country will follow the leadership of the Democratic party.
